

International Public Notice: It's Always the Same

By Anna Von Reitz

We say, "Nobody wants war."

But that's a lie.

Someone does. Someone who doesn't even appear to be at the table, discussing the issue.

After the war, the "winners" have to pay to rebuild the "losers", otherwise the world economy collapses.

So we spend years repairing and rebuilding what has been wantonly destroyed.

We pay for all this, or become indebted for all this, depending on whether you are a "winner" or a "loser", but as everyone already knows, there are no winners in a war, much less a mercenary conflict.

Meanwhile we pay for all the war surplus supplies that are leftover and redistribute this largesse as best we may.

Have you figured it out yet?

How is it, that while we all say we don't want war, and nobody truly benefits from it, we have war after war after war?

Somehow, we are deceived into it each and every time.

And the same Parties are always present. Always. The Brits.

They are always at the beginning, the middle, and the end.

The Holy Roman Empire is always present, too, if you look hard enough and discern its many faces.

Right now, a million-man Turkish Army is sweeping through Syria, headed for Iran. Who would imagine that Francis, Patriarch of the West, is responsible for this and using the wealth of the Roman Catholic Church to pay for this?

Only cynics who have learned their lessons well.

Who benefits? The arms dealers and defense contractors and suppliers benefit. Those selling mercenary services, whether or not the victims know they are serving and being sold as mercenaries --- benefit. To an extent, and in a twisted way, the Losers benefit from rebuilding everything.

Japan and Germany benefited from having to rebuild their industrial base and infrastructure after the Second World War, though the cost of all this can never be reckoned in terms of what might have been and could have been.

The "Winners" have illegally occupied the Losers and usurped their lawful governments, and have attempted to excuse this as rights won by force of arms in a legitimate war, but this is a Lie, too.

The Winners were acting as Mercenary Forces and their Declarations of War all lack standing, so what we are left with is nothing but lies and crime.

Fraud against both sides.

Not one "President of the United States" was the actual President of this country. From George Washington onward.

They were instead Americans acting as British Territorial Officers of British Crown Corporations, controlling both our military and our Federal Civil Service, evading their obligations under the Constitutions we gave them as service contracts, spending our resources and the lives of our sons and daughters on mercenary wars for profit, using us, "the Americans" as their pawns---- and blaming us for their own misdeeds.

All this must now be reckoned with.

The American People now know. We are now awake. We have read the public records. No controlled opposition, however well-funded, will work. No phony British Territorial-led "Federal" Republic will succeed.

As quickly and desperately as Donald Trump acts to bring the Good Cop back into view, while our attention is fixed on the last spiteful, arrogant acts of the Bad Cop, Joe Biden, the assumption seems to be that we will be lulled back to sleep by a "better" economy and whatever bread and circuses the scammers can offer us.

Think again.
