

The Baby and the Bath Water -- The Church and the Temple of Ba'al

By Anna Von Reitz

There is mounting evidence that The Roman Catholic Church leadership has allowed hideous sin and heresy to corrupt their Church from within. This morning I have read the "Crimen Sollicitationas" openly published since 1929 and included in the Vatican II Reforms.

This is nothing more or less than a policy to protect criminals and ordering members of the Church to keep silent.

That this order, "Crimen Sollicitationas" is described as "a Pontifical secret" again gives credence to my published assertion that the Office of Pontiff charged with the Secular Duties of the Church has in fact been abused to operate a Temple of Ba'al in parallel and within The Church of Rome, perhaps as far back as the Council of Nicea.

The Office of Pontiff was vacated in 2011, together with the liquidation of the Romanus Pontifex Trust, but the end of the so-called "pontificate" does not in itself cleanse the Church of heresy and evil. That is a much more difficult process, which many faithful members of the clergy and local parish members have undertaken, despite the crushing pain of these revelations.

If my surmises are correct and Ba'al worship was allowed within The Roman Catholic Church as a "Secular Religion" in keeping with Roman practices at the time of the Council of Nicea--- and that such "worship" has been part of the Pontificate ever since--- this is a very entrenched, protected, and intricately interwoven "secret" which has served to undermine the mission and performance of the Church for seventeen centuries.

The structural proof exists that the Office of the Pontiff used the Church as a storefront to hide crimes of unimaginable proportions, and even went so far as to order church members to keep quiet about it on pain of Excommunication.

How would you like to be a sincere Catholic waking up to that reality?

So I have urged everyone of all the denominations to pray for the sincere Followers of Yashuah who are members of The Roman Catholic Church.

They need our prayers and support far more than ever now.

Share the fight with them and encourage them in their calling to cleanse their Church of this great evil once and for all ---- and do not turn away from them because of the sins that have been perpetuated "in the name of" The Roman Catholic Church.

These are not the sins of Catholics, but are the sins of Satanists --- Ba'al Worshipers embedded within the Church.

Today, there is credible news and evidence that the necessary cleansing process has begun in earnest. Members of the Catholic Clergy from many countries have taken a stand and broken with the Code of Silence imposed by the "Crimen Sollicitationas".

Please read their Declaration and remember the many good and earnest Believers who are members of The Roman Catholic Church in your hearts and in your prayers. They face a most terrible conflict in this War of the Spirit. They followed through on their Declaration by providing a "massive" file of information to prosecutors at the ITCCS.

NOT IN OUR NAME

A Legal and Moral Declaration and Pledge of Non-Cooperation issued by Concerned Roman Catholic Clergy
Issued on Sunday, September 23, 2018

We are a group of clergy within the Roman Catholic Church who in good conscience are unable to associate any longer with the criminal, anti-Christian actions of the Vatican and the Papacy. We refer to the massive cover up of violent crimes against children now being perpetrated as a matter of policy by the church hierarchy: crimes in which every Catholic is expected to collude.

The growing exposure in the world media of a massive network in our church of child trafficking, rape, torture and murder, and the direct implication of the Pope and senior Cardinals and Bishops in this network, compels every one of us to make a choice. For by our daily association with the Church of Rome we are accomplices in its crimes, under both the laws of God and Man. No Papal statute or command can justify or absolve such a criminal and sinful association. Whether Pope or Priest, we must all face and answer to God for our actions, or our inaction. And we must also answer to the Law.

Under the law, anyone – including ordained clergymen – can be tried and convicted for harming a child or enabling or concealing those who do.

As Catholics, we are all therefore guilty and subject to prosecution according to our own church policy known as Crimen Sollicitationas (1929), which requires that we suppress evidence of child abuse in the church, not tell the police of such abuse, and silence the victims. This policy refers to the rape of children as "a pontifical secret" which, if disclosed, will result in the excommunication of any honest Catholic who reports the crime! Such a bizarre and inhuman statute constitutes a massive criminal conspiracy for which we are all liable for arrest and prosecution.

For this reason, as moral beings and followers of Jesus Christ, we cannot any longer adhere to the collusion and silence imposed on us by a criminal church regime that places its own money and power ahead of the lives and safety of children. For did not our Lord tell us, "Whatever you do to the least of these my people, you do to me?"; and "Whoever would cause one of these little ones to fall, it would be better that a millstone be tied around his neck and he be cast into the sea"?

Christ's judgement on those who harm children is the same as ours.

Accordingly, as of this day, we publicly disassociate ourselves from any allegiance to the leaders of the Church of Rome and from our vows of obedience to our Bishops and to the Pope. We will not be subject any longer to Crimen Sollicitationis and its requirement of collusion with the rape and murder of children. Under the law of God and Man, we are obligated to always protect children and prosecute their tormentors, not simply when it is expedient.

As a consequence, we pledge ourselves to the following faithful course of action:

1. We will actively uncover and report to our congregations, the police and the media any violence or other crimes done against children within our parishes, dioceses and communities, regardless of Church policy.
2. We will also uncover and report to our congregations, the police and the media the names of anyone within the Church who harms a child or who aids and abets such harm, and who conceals it, regardless of their rank or position within the Church.
3. As ordained clergymen, we will refuse to give Holy Communion or any other sacrament of the Church to anyone associated with such crimes. We will also refuse to accept financial donations or tithings of such persons.
4. If ordered by our nominal superiors to collude with such crimes, or if we face discipline or punishments for acting according to our consciences and the Law, we will separate ourselves from those officials and continue to conduct our pastoral and sacramental offices apart from the church hierarchy, within separate congregations under the authority of Christ Alone.
5. We will actively reach out to all our brethren clergy and to all Roman Catholics in our communities, and urge them to join us and take this same pledge of Non-Cooperation and Witness against the anti-Christ regime that governs our Church. Our faith is in God and not in Man. As God wills it, so it is done.
