

International Public Notice: The Cheat Sheet

By Anna Von Reitz

Europe was greatly injured by WWII, both in terms of people killed and infrastructure destroyed. It required an influx of billions upon billions of dollars worth of labor and more billions upon billions in terms of materials.

The United States was left in charge of an illegal mercenary occupation of Western Europe under the pretense of "war". Under this deal, we got to pay for Europe's rebuild and all their defense costs; in exchange, US Corporation franchises named like this: FRANCE, GERMANY, BELGIUM, etc., took over and provided all the civil services these countries needed and U.S.A. Corporation franchises named like this: France, Inc., Germany, Inc., Belgium, Inc..... took over and provided all the defense services.

Except for taxes charged the people in each country for these "government services" the cost of this massive operation was charged off against private assets held in the central banks -- assets originally earmarked to pay for other services entirely.

So Mr. Trump comes into office and wrinkles his forehead and says to himself --- WT? Why are we paying 96% of all defense costs for Europe, eighty years after the war ended? They have better standards of living than Americans do!

So he blundered about and "suggested" that they pay a greater share of their own defense costs --- not much, a few percentage points more.

But that was the little trickle of "water" that exposed the Mighty Gusher the Europe has been all these years. It turns out that via their European franchises operating as "government services corporations" --- America and the American People --- have been paying for nearly the whole cost of everything for Europe for a very long time, while the franchise operations there have become increasingly ungrateful, demanding, and intent on war-profiteering in the Ukraine.

They want to pay their "excess debts" and war with Russia serves their purposes, both in terms of arms sales and in hopes of seizing upon vast tracts of land from the Ukraine and regaining control of numerous business enterprises engaged in illegal drugs, human trafficking, organ harvesting, and other black ops resources in Ukraine.

If the European franchise organizations do the mop up in Ukraine, they can also hide their tracks.

Otherwise, the Russians will find everything and it will be more than an embarrassment.

So that is the kind of game going on between the EU and the Trump Administration. Trump is pushing them -- the franchises -- to make more money and pay more money toward their bill with their parent corporation in DC. They are pushing back because he won't support them in starting a war with Russia which is their primary means of doing what he wants them to do.

It's like being in the middle of a choke hold. Can't do what he wants them to do without a war and Trump is trying to make peace, instead. He only sees the humongous outflow, doesn't understand how all this happened, and so continues to try to deal with a situation in which pulling on either shoelace only tightens the knot.

A starting point would be to admit that all these countries are being illegally "occupied" by mercenary forces, and ruled over by commercial corporation franchises. Assist the natural and traditional and customary national governments to restore themselves, and nationalize these corporations -- voluntarily -- so that France belongs to Frenchmen again, Germany belongs to Germany..... and so on.

Nationalism has always been tribal and fractious, but internationalism and even worse, forced globalism, has proven to be worse.

The Covid 19 whackjob depopulation and enslavement program has already killed more people --- nearly all of them innocent of any crime or fault -- than have been killed in all wars beginning with and ever since the Crimean War. That's the death tally for globalism so far.

And all King Charles III, sitting in the catbird seat of all this, can do, is kinda-sorta admit that the Windsors sold off a lot of National Treasures that were supposed to be safely housed in various National Trusts --- to raise hush money and payola funds and provide means for the lavish lifestyles the Royals have lived.

British news commentators have attempted to make Charles III sound brave for doing this er--sort of -- confession and stepping aside to allow Prince William to take the brunt of what comes next.

We don't call it a "reset". It's not really like turning the power switch to "off", waiting 15 seconds and rebooting. No. It's not a reset that's required.

It's a complete rebuild and restore starting from an earlier point in time.

This requires a recognition of who and what the criminals are and have always been. Let's get a clue and call them the Babylonians.

Of course, there aren't supposed to be any Babylonians any more. Their great cities lie in ruins, inhabited by owls and lizards. Yet, their fingerprints are everywhere and the evils of their practices are self-evident.

They are the modern day members of an ancient and endlessly venal religious cult and all the power they have results from them producing a product called "money" and foisting this product off on other people.

It started off as an innocent exchange of commodities of equal value --- a gold coin in exchange for a sack of wheat.

But today it has become a totally inequitable exchange of "tokens", pieces of paper, or digits entered on a "digital ledger" for actual goods and services.

The Vermin have been working up to this point of depravity and fraud for a long time, more than a hundred years of gradually substituting things of value for things of no value being offered in exchange for goods and services.

Over many years we have observed many forms of tokens -- coupons, vouchers, debt swaps, notes, certificates and even plastic credit cards attached to accounts full of "money of account". Even "debt money" that is worth far less than nothing has been offered in exchange for labor and goods, and still, the public has remained asleep, not wanting to deal with the obvious fraud and criminality.

No wonder the Perpetrators mistook our unwillingness to "get involved" for mental deficiency, and began to treat us as cruelly as they treat children too young to know better: more livestock to be owned, sheared, and slaughtered.

Imagine their surprise when we spoke up?

It really was what we call "the Talking Horse" moment.

They couldn't believe their ears.

Americans! Talking! For the first time in 150 years.....

It would be like discovering a herd of extinct ruminants still roaming the plains, or a full flock of Dodo Birds.

Yet, here we are, and we are stuck cleaning up the incredible Mess that our erstwhile Hired Helpers have left us. Standby for more situation updates.
