

International Public Notice: Murder With Cranberry Sauce

By Anna Von Reitz

The peculiarly American holiday is upon us, a day when the whole country pauses, counts blessings, gathers together, and celebrates the harvest and good fellowship. That's what it is all about, underneath the Turkey Dinner and Cranberry Sauce. It's a good holiday, and it has the unmistakable aura of a tradition rooted in the practical world: it's about the true brotherhood of mankind, about sharing the blessings of the Earth, and being thankful for it all.

Even if we still have a pagan goddess standing in New York Harbor under False Pretenses. Even if "our" government isn't actually our government. We've survived 160 years as a Nation of Lies, but we are still striving for the Truth. That says something good about us.

The Hope-Hope-Hopium Team are out in force threatening the rest of us with the "imminent" activation of the Emergency Broadcast System -- a modernized version of an air raid warning system - designed during the Cold War and updated since then, so that it pipes through to the cell phones of every American.

For those in other countries, virtually everyone in America has a cell phone and that phone has a feature that allows what functions as our government to interrupt whatever other communication is going on and announce whatever they wish to announce.

What they are threatening to do this time is interrupt all our normal chatter and web browsing and live streaming of Hallmark Holiday Specials with a Horror Movie, right in time for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

They propose that we all be forced to watch umpteen hours of Hillary Clinton and Huma Abedin skinning a little girl alive and things like that, over Thanksgiving Dinner. It doesn't make any difference that it's probably all Hollywood and CGI generated. It makes you want to throw up just the same.

So we have this to say about their "movie" which they have been threatening to show for years: If any such gross and purposeful intrusion of such trauma on our collective psyche takes place, if any planned "dimming" of the electrical grid takes place and people are made miserable or die from exposure as a result, we will personally hold all jackasses responsible for it accountable.

The military let all this crap happen on its watch for 160 years. The least they can do is clean it up without further harming the innocent in an effort to justify their actions and glorify themselves.

We are happy to see the military closing the border at last. We are happy to see the military busting human traffickers and blackmail cells and shutting down adrenochrome and organ harvesting and nailing the election tweekers to the wall. Too bad things ever had to get this bad before they took action, but better late than never.

That part of it is all good. Arresting the members of the phony Corporation Congresses that did such things as defunding the Federal Marshals program and leaving our entire international land jurisdiction wide open for criminals to exploit --- that would be even better.

How about arresting DARPA employees who developed "chemtrail" pollution programs and "so much more" including phony vaccination programs, injectable nanobots, and patent holder claims to own "transhumans".

How about we own them, all these criminals on federal payrolls, in a slightly different sense? At the very least, they deserve a good ass whupping, fines up the rump, public exposure for their crimes, and not being eligible for rehire. Ever. And no government pensions.

While we are at it, why don't we deport every "Esquire" in America straight back to England, and shut down all the European-style Guilds, like the American Medical Association and the Bar Associations?

If this is their idea of "professional excellence" we have other words for it. They can be deported for failure to register under the Foreign Agents Registration Act, right along with all the other foreign Joes and Janes being picked up and booted out right now.

Begin with every attorney sitting in the U.S. Congress.

Deport them back to England. Why not? The King claims them as his titled servants, and they agree to this. He has continued to provide Letters of Marque in Gross Breach of Trust and Service Contract and Treaty. They've been working to undermine our government and replace it with Britain's Half-baked and Criminal Empire since 1829.

We say turnaround is fair play. We say that anyone who wants to stay in this country owes it good faith service. We say that the Residence Act sets clear standards.

So instead of playing us Horror Movies over our holiday dinners, and threatening us with "dimming" the power grid -- whatever to Hell you all think that means? -- get the lead out and enforce the laws that are already on the books. We are all waiting for someone, somewhere to grow a brain, and enforce them.

Yes, all you "security" agencies, all you police departments, all you attorneys, District and otherwise, all you National Guard Units, all you quasi-military forces -- shake a leg. Shut down the criminally mis-administered "Administrative Courts" and open up Military Tribunals instead.

You've been operating in "Colorable Admiralty Law" all these years and using it to pillage and plunder your innocent employers. Why not use the real thing to discipline the rogues that have harmed us all?

That's what we pay you for. Actual protection of ourselves and our persons, our peace, and our possessions. We are not paying you to protect those preying upon us, impersonating our elected officials, and undertaking criminal acts against us under color of law.

We aren't paying you to redefine us as "transhumans". We aren't paying you to advance obscene claims of ownership interest in us or our property via any means whatsoever.

Your paycheck is a contract, and if you didn't get the drift before, we are enforcing it.

There'd better not be any undue interruption of our Thanksgiving holiday. None at all. No planned grid failures. No broadcast of snuff films polluting our airwaves and the more impressionable minds among us. None of that.

What we require is old-fashioned "good faith service". And a modicum of common sense.
