

International Public Notice: To Derek Johnson

By Anna Von Reitz

Lately, we have been hearing a lot from a young man named Derek Johnson who has, quite rightly, been citing chapter and verse from the military regulations concerning the "Continuance of Government" protocols being exercised by Donald J. Trump.

He has also been making a case for the right of the military to take action in the event of a political catastrophe. Again, good enough, so far as it goes, however... Our militia in 1775 is a far different animal and apart from the for-hire mercenary forces of 2024.

We have an American Government in place and the military, both the American Militia and the for-hire U.S. Military, is supposed to be taking its orders --- not from its own British Territorial Congress or worse, the Municipal Congress -- but from our American Government and our States of the Union.

To date, they are still operating as a foreign mercenary force under the guidance of a foreign corporation's "President".

Their excuse is that we haven't been in Session in so long that they don't know who we are, but it's not hard to figure out. Anyone who can sort through ten tons of military code and procedure can figure out which government the military owes allegiance to.

Derek Johnson points to the fact that the military existed and took action in 1775, even prior to The Declaration of Independence, and he makes the argument that the military is the actual owner of this country, but, again, he's just a little off base about some basics.

The people of this country own it, and "people" means "militia".

Whether you say "of the people, for the people, by the people" or you say "of the militia, for the militia, by the militia" --- it means exactly the same thing.

Our militia hasn't been in action since The War of 1812, and it's a good thing that we have been at peace. We are peaceable people, slow to anger, patient and long-suffering, but we have a well-deserved reputation for standing to the last man and fighting when we fight.

The Greeks at Thermopylae ain't got nothing on the Americans at Fort McHenry.

So let's review this again.

The entity fighting in 1775 was the American Militia, not a For-Hire British Territorial Force being paid by a foreign Corporation to illegally occupy this country.

Like many Americans, including Americans in the Armed Forces, Derek Johnson is confused. He thinks that the military he is familiar with is the military of this country, but it's not.

The Union Army in 1860 was already a Mercenary Force and there has been no change in the nature or status of any U.S. Military since then.

So, once again, we have a confusion between apples and oranges, the American Militia being confused with the U.S. Army. They are completely different things with different aims and political allegiances.

The U.S. Army is a British Territorial Force under contract to defend this country for pay. It's a private mercenary force operated by a foreign corporation that we can describe generally as the U.S.A. Inc.

Our American Militia is a completely different thing; it operates without pay and has roughly 257 million members. Of those, roughly 40 million are veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces. And we are all prickly as hell right now, because of the circus the for-hire military and their politicians have created:

1. Imposing the disastrous "Federal Reserve" system on the people of this country for the last century and a half; no, it didn't begin in 1913-- it got its fangs in during the Lincoln Administration like everything else.

2. Imposing British Maritime and Admiralty Courts on the people of this country for the past century and a half and operating them to illegally and immorally impersonate Americans, commit barratry against them, and illegally tax and confiscate American assets.

3. Carrying on a program of war-for-profit against the rest of the world as well as this country for a century and a half; conscripting our children as mercenaries and lying to them about the nature of their "service".

4. Creating a completely monopolized financial world based on purloined assets, human enslavement and blood money, half funded on lies and the rest funded on securitizing living flesh and performance contracts.

5. And after the "U.S. military" was found to be responsible for all the above, what did the U.S. Army do? It called on its illegally conscripted "Uniformed Officers" -- the Medical Doctors -- to kill millions of unarmed civilians worldwide using a phony pandemic and non-existent "emergency powers" to shove experimental mRNA injections into everyone's arms--- including the members of the U.S. Military itself.

So long as Derek Johnson is such an expert in U.S. Military affairs, perhaps he could tell us what this unimaginable Cluster was all about? Some kind of suicidal rampage like an estranged husband killing his wife and then killing himself? A total failure of "military intelligence"?

Or perhaps, "If we can't rob the Americans, ain't nobody going to rob the Americans!"

How about the American Militia just stands up and shows you all just how stupid this really is?

You are fighting against your own people, doing the bidding of foreign interests, and are too wrapped up in red tape to get the message straight, Derek.

It's not the for-hire military that won this country by force of arms. It's not the for-hire military that has done anything worthwhile for this country at all. The for-hire military has been asset-stripping this country for the last century and a half, and waging constant mercenary war against us and against other nations "in our names".

Get it all the way straight, Derek Johnson, or not at all. There are no "Executive Orders" nor any "Emergency Powers" granted by the people of this country to any foreign corporation's "President".

The for-hire military has breached our trust, lied to us, lied about us, and been a parasite in our flesh for the past 160 years.

It's the American Militia that went to the field in 1775, not the U.S. Army.
