

Polluting the Blood -- Evil on Steroids

By Anna Von Reitz

Now the criminals are trying to find even easier ways to pollute the human genome with their patented poisons:

I have one thing to say--- the best, most permanent, and most effective way to stop this and any future activities of the same ilk -- is to charge Bill Gates with his crimes and seize his property.

This is all about money and coercive control.

So we need to deprive him of the profits he seeks and make a public spectacle of him and Microsoft and the Gates Foundation, et alia.

Corporations and corporate mindsets are fascist by nature. They are endemically sneaky, risk-averse, and at the same time, oddly herd-like, all tending to operate on the same wave-length.

I have always assumed that this is because they are all centered on the same goal: profit, with a few of them like DOD, INC., centered on both profit and control/coercion.

Make an example --- a real example --- of one of them, and the rest scatter like cockroaches. Come down hard enough and really squash Bill Gates, and nobody will invest in hijacking the health sector of the economy for a couple hundred years.

To the extent that they can force sales on people, for-profit corporations would all be very interested, but most CEO's realize that this is an untenable proposition and that it's illegal, too.

None of that troubles Bill Gates, who, faced with prosecution for profiteering and monopoly activities at Microsoft, decided to use his non-profit foundation to do the same exact things.

What started out as a media campaign to rebrand Bill Gates as a philanthropist had an accidental consequence.

He started investing in vaccines for Third World countries and found out that it was, quote, "the most profitable investment" he'd ever made, yielding a reported $20 billion in profits -- by his own admission.

Nothing more was necessary. He had cover--- a nice philanthropic smokescreen and no taxes. He had unbelievable profits. What's a megalomaniac business tycoon to do, but capitalize, capitalize, capitalize?

John D. Rockefeller, another completely predatory business tycoon, would be proud of Bill Gates and Gates' attempts to combine coercion (using public health concerns as the excuse) and sales (for profit motives) to reach the Holy Grail of forced sales of products and services.

Gates' friends in government guaranteed him billions in sales, and then, his prior-placed investments guaranteed him more billions in profits from selling cures and therapies and hospital tech to deal with the problems he is busily creating.

It's what J.D. specialized in himself, and here's Bill, a chip off the old (criminal) family block, doing the same thing and exploiting a whole new sector of the economy to do it.

Gates, like his Rockefeller ancestors, has had plenty of help to do it, because too many people in this world lack the sense of a guinea hen.

He throws a few kernels of "corn" their way, and they are all ready and willing to help him enslave everyone, and they stupidly imagine that they will avoid being enslaved themselves.

It'll only be the black people, they think, not noticing the shackles on their own feet and wrists.
