

International Public Notice: The Greater Kingdom

By Anna Von Reitz

After more than a thousand years our people have grown in numbers and dispersed to many countries, to Italy, Austria, Germany, France, Britain, and also, obviously, The United States.

This is natural and to be expected. It is also not widely understood.

All these people share a common origin and birthright and DNA heritage, wherever they are found. They are all descended from the Cherusci who first opposed Rome in the Battle of Teutoburg Forest, in 9 A.D.---- which cost Rome more than three Legions and stopped Rome's advance beyond the Rhine River.

Everything that has happened since then in the bulk of Europe can be traced back to that singular military victory over Emperor Octavian, and to the people allied by blood and culture to the Cherusci.

It is a gross misrepresentation to think that the Western Kingdom is our only manifestation on Earth; like the American States, the heirs of the Cherusci -- the Visigoths and others, are still here. We didn't go anywhere. We simply haven't been political.

Beating our war drums and war profiteering are not for us; we have always sought the benefits of peace and fair trade, instead. The trappings of monarchies bestowed by Popes held no illusions for us, either. Our goals have always been far more practical: health, peace, security, honor, the well-being of our lands and people.

Those who are having a hard time conceptualizing the Clan of the Belle Chers, examine one of our Family Clans, the Great Clan MacDonald of Scotland.

The Clan MacDonald is not traced back to any single progenitor. The Clan is traced back to many different bloodlines that were adopted and together became one Clan, one Family. That is what the Belle Chers are on a far larger trans-national scale.

You see the same principles at work with the Lakota-Winnebago peoples in the Midwest and Western States in America; they are actually one people changed over time by living in different physical environments, but still bound together by blood and heritage. They are a Clan like the Clan MacDonald, not derived from one progenitor, but all brought together, adopted, to form a Great Clan.

The same thing applies to the people of Normandy. The Armoricans are their own Clan within the greater Clan known as the Normans; the Normans are not "French". The Normans are a Great Clan drawn from many progenitors, many Clans, including but not limited to the Franconians -- the "French". Together their land interests are all represented by the Kingdom of Gaul, not by the Kingdom of France which is a sea kingdom, a business akin to Great Britain, having no true indigenous basis in physical fact.

What matters in the end, all that matters, are the Creation -- the actual physical Earth, and the Energy that sustains it. This is the only "value" that exists and we are all an integral part of All That Is.

Think about this: we are each a fractal part of physical and energetic creation, a little Microcosm that exactly supports and reflects the Macrocosm.

I had a great intellectual battle with some of the top Jesuits of the world. At one point, they were jeering at me and asking, "Where is your land? What right do you, a woman merely standing on the agency of your husband, have to address us and claim land rights? All your land rights, public and private, have been transferred to public trusts under the protection of militaries paid for by us."

That is, you are nothing. You are caught in our legal trap, unable to make a valid claim to own any land whatsoever; you are dependent on us, a pauper at our mercy.

And I thumped my chest and said:

"Here is my land, in my bones and my muscles. And my sea is in my blood, which is the same pH as the oceans. And my air is in my breath. And I have dominion. I am created, not made, and I am part of Creation. I am holy. Sacred. And so is every living thing that walks, swims, crawls, creeps and grows. All that lives is sacred. Even the stones and the minerals buried in the Earth are sacred. By what right do you propose to tell me anything about your "powers" and plans that you have made "for" me on the basis of deceit?"

Not a word was answered. Not a single peep.

"God has made me a caretaker and nurturer of this planet," I continued, "while all you think of is your own thoughts and all you seek is control and domination. You don't even admit the purpose of mankind, which is clearly stated in the very First Book of your own Bible. We are all caretakers. We are all trustees. And God is the donor, so gainsay me if you can, and answer if you will --- by what right do you meddle and set yourselves above what God has decreed and what Creation needs? By what authority do you propose to enslave and denigrate the caretakers and interfere in our work?"

Another thudding silence.

All these 950 "American" military bases that have been built and occupied around the world are not American. They were paid for and created by the Roman secular authorities using the British Commonwealth officers and knightly orders as the mechanism, and using our country as a storefront.

They plundered the World Trust in the name of "peace" --- an Orwellian modern Pax Romana, a peace enforced by Draconian suppression of free will and individual intelligence, greased with payola and brainwashing and blackmail.

We, the authors and adherents of The Declaration of Independence, were blamed for this, our sons and daughters were made into unknowing mercenaries in support of this, and we were indebted to pay for it by unelected, unappointed, unseen droves of foreign bureaucrats operating under color of law.

We did not plunder the World Trust and invest it in war.

We did not direct our armies and navies and air forces to plunder and pillage other nations and countries.

We did not create the "central bank system" to rig all the commodities on Earth, including money and labor.

The Armoricans, our people, who first came to trade on these shores came as humble sailors and fishermen, intending only to trade, not to conquer. They abided by the natural peace among men for centuries.

It was because of the friendly relationships and "blood treaties" -- marriages -- that our people established with the native Americans that the French King claimed to have an interest here -- and that is what sparked the New World version of the Seven Years War, called The French and Indian War in this country.

It is clear that the name "America" came from the British mispronouncing "Armorica". It could not be more self-evident.

It is also clear from the DNA evidence that the Armoricans married into most of the Native tribes (clans) in North America, and that their seafarers, fishermen, and fur traders were here long, long before Christopher Columbus.

This may be an inconvenient truth, like the truth that we are all a microcosm of the universe, but it is a truth nonetheless.

The true king of the Western Kingdom is not anyone named Ulric.
The true king of the Western Kingdom -- all of it -- is named Eric, which means "Eternal Ruler" --- for a reason.

Let any man thinking he has the means and authority to gainsay me in this and prove otherwise, stand forward and come to judgement; otherwise, let all hold their peace, knowing that their own divine destiny is about to be fulfilled and they are to enter into a true heaven on Earth, where there will be no more fighting and crying, no more disease or poverty.

Not because an iron boot rests on our necks.
Not because a surveillance state based on the Spanish Inquisition is imposed and empowered by Artificial Intelligence.

No.

This will naturally come to pass as we embrace our true identity and embark on our own true purposes.

A buzz word has recently appeared, saying, "Remember who you are." --- a modern day equivalent of, "Know thyself."

Perhaps it would be better to say, "Remember what you are." -- a divine microcosm, a fulfillment of universal life and energy, a sacred miracle just as you are, and your only purpose is to caretake the world around you and learn more about yourself and about other people and other living plants and animals.... and even the rocks and the minerals which are here with us.

Our purpose is not to make up vain stories as "narratives" to wheedle some kind of advantage or justify exalting ourselves over others. It has nothing to do with making symbols of value to "stand for" the value that we are ourselves. We are the value. We are all the inheritors and the builders and the caretakers.

So rejoice in this day and make the most of it. Learn to honor the truth, for the truth honors you. Your virtues are indeed your rewards.
