

The History of Gold -- Additional Insight for the High Courts, as Requested

By Anna Von Reitz

Egyptian Gold

Turn your attention now to the sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh. Joseph didn't receive his Father's blessing. He asked that his Father, Jacob, bless his two sons instead. So his sons got a double portion, and the generation skipping trust was born.

Ephraim, Joseph's oldest son by the daughter of the Egyptian High Priest, was given the scepter --- that is, the blood money based on labor.

Manasseh, Joseph's younger son by the daughter of the Egyptian High Priest, was given the wealth --- that is, the asset-backed money and physical wealth.

Where did the wealth come from? From their Egyptian Mother. Jacob had sheep and goats and cattle, but their Mother had gold and silver and copper and jewels --- and the alchemy of Egypt to pass on to Manasseh.

Wealth derives from the female lineage in all ancient tribal cultures, including the Egyptians.

Later, during the days of the Kings, the Tribe of Manasseh was split in two, resulting in two wealth centers separated from each other.

One branch of the Tribe of Manasseh went overland to Assyria with the rest of the Ten Lost Tribes during the Assyrian Captivity, and from there, spread across Europe.

The other branch of the Tribe of Manasseh wandered the Earth in search of their lost brethren. We know them today as the "Gypsies", and to this day, they are associated with magic and alchemy.

Both groups came together in 305 A.D. in the Roman settlement of Verulam, Hertfordshire, England, "to thrash out the truth". This is literally what the name "Verulam" means in Latin.

Neither branch of Manasseh is Jewish anymore. Both groups have long ago assimilated and adopted other ethnic and cultural identities and religions.

They can only be identified by their genetics and certain outward physical characteristics.

Not coincidental to this thrashing out event, Britain gained its first Christian Martyr, St. Alban, the Patron Saint of converts, refugees, and torture victims, who need comfort and protection more than ever.

The two groups could not agree on hardly anything. Not history. Not religion. Not ethics. Not vision. Both groups doubled down, each one jealously guarding their secrets and nourishing their animosities---- and both thirsting for knowledge as the Key to Power. They fought as only brothers can fight.

The battle in Britain entered a new era with the ascension of Queen Elizabeth 1. Under her reign two great forces representing The Great Dialectic came into being, They were and are the Globalists who arose under the influence of Dr. John Dee and the Roman Catholic Society of Jesus, and the Nationalists who arose under the influence of Sir Frances Bacon, First Viscount of Verulam, St. Albans, and the Protestant Reformation.

All of this came to a head in France, in the person of His Grey Eminence, Cardinal Richelieu, and in America, in the person of General George Washington. And in the blood and dust of both the American Revolution and the French Revolution, a vital secret was lost.

All gold on Earth has a fingerprint -- like a DNA signature, except Egyptian gold, which unlike natural gold deposits, is manufactured from Mercury. So in the current situation, the question arises -- who owns all this Egyptian gold?

A relative of Cardinal Richelieu from the Gypsie lineage stepped forward and, with acumen, demonstrated that he was at least "a" rightful heir to the Egyptian gold, and he was given Signatory Authority over it, by all the various authorities and heads of state.

The CIA grabbed him, transported him from behind the Iron Curtain, gave him a new name, and dumped him here as a powerless U.S. Citizen, assumed to be a Subject and Ward of Her Royal Majesty, Elizabeth II, who promptly seized upon him and all his assets and authorities--- while he was understandably confused about America, the Land of the Free, not being free--- and himself denied access to the wealth everyone including the Queen, agreed was his.

Nasty trick.

He has recently exited his political status as a U.S. Citizen and adopted a State of the Union as his permanent house, home, and domicile ---- which removes him from the Queen's control, and puts an end to her ability to "legally" access his Signatory Authority.

Thus, the gravy train has dried up.

Agents of the Globalist Agenda are placed in an odd position; as this is both a victory and a defeat. This man has regained his standing and Signature Authority, but the only way he can exercise it, is as an American.

It's not that he wants to do anything bad with all this gold; far from it. He wants it to form an asset base to bless the whole Earth.

And here's where things take a twist. The other branch of Manasseh also claims the gold. And they have credibility, because their ancestor, St. Germain demonstrated that he knew how to create gemstones, gold, and other precious metals in his lifetime --- and did so repeatedly in front of Church Officials, Royal Courts, and others. He left behind an absolutely stupendous fortune deposited all over the planet and left in the care of his acolytes, and this is all "Egyptian" gold, too.

So, who is telling the truth? The man with the lineage and the receipts, or the man who showed himself to be a modern day creator of Egyptian gold? And since there is no appreciable difference between Ancient Egyptian gold and the same substance created in such quantity by Saint Germain ---- how do we tell which piles belong to who?

The Saint Germain side of the story has been temporarily blocked by a Breach of Trust seeking to incorporate the Family Trust and Foundation (and thus bring it under the control of the Queen again) but that action is and was in obvious breach of the Trust Indenture, and I have placed a protective lien on the whole shebang.

The Bible tells us that the two branches of Manasseh will be healed and brought together and this does seem to be a propitious moment for that to happen, because all this history is now known and out in the open, and there is really no disagreement on either side. They may not like each other, they may not trust each other, they may be scarred by generations of religious warfare ---- Catholic v. Protestant --- and both of them against the Muslims, but, at the end of the day, both sides loudly proclaim that they want to help the Earth and all the people on it.

And the only remaining obstacle to that happy outcome appears to be who gets to claim "victory" and dole out the gold.

This is our first public pronouncement on this subject and let us be brief. People are needlessly suffering and dying and starving and going without in sight of the unimaginable wealth that is freely offered for their relief. The Earth is suffering from pollution and physical damage wrought by wrong-headed "defense" technologies and commercial products. Most nations think that they are burdened down with insurmountable debt, and left unaware of their even more insurmountable wealth.

The Age of Quarrels has ended, the Double Golden Jubilee is here. Let the storehouses of the Lord be opened. Like the Earth itself, the gold doesn't belong to us, it's just given to us as a gift to be used and enjoyed. Let Manasseh recognize Manasseh at last, be healed, and heal others.

The American Gold

In addition to Egyptian gold, there is American gold --- by which we mean gold from both North and South America, and all this natural gold has its unique characteristics and DNA, too.

We all know about the Spanish gold, which has made its way all around the world, but we've been kept ignorant about North American gold. Let's get a hint --- there was a lot more than the California gold rush or even the Klondike gold rush. Much, much more, that was mined at an earlier date by people(s) unknown, and left behind in vast stockpiles in canyon systems and caves in the American Southwest.

Those who wanted to make gold scarce, and therefore perceived to be more valuable, deliberately suppressed this information, and deliberately left a lot of this in the ground to avoid paying the Queen her 10% tribute tax.

As the British, French, Spanish, and Dutch investors had speculated, there was gold in the American West, just as there was gold in South and Meso-America. This became very obvious with discoveries in the Grand Canyon made by U.S. Military Expeditions beginning in the 1860's, but the military being the military found ways to hide this and sneak it off to the Philippines.

It will surprise many Americans to learn that the U.S. Territorial Government bought the Philippine Islands "for" us, using our money, in the same way that they purchased Alaska and Hawaii. To this day, the Philippines is a Territorial State with an "independent government" established in 1934 --- for the express purpose of enabling this new independent government to act as Trustee for American gold that was transported to the Philippines for decades and rat-holed in natural caves there by the U.S. Navy, for "safekeeping".

So, now everyone knows where the bulk of the gold stored in the Philippines came from, and it was not "Yamashita's Gold" and it wasn't wealth from any Chinese Elders, nor the Elders of Mu, or any other such fanciful story.

The bulk of the gold in China was gathered up by the Nationalist Chinese in 1928 and deposited with the New York Federal Reserve Bank --- which is another story.

Our gold has the metal DNA of North America imprinted all over it, and even efforts to re-smelt it and mingle it with Spanish South American gold to obscure its provenance have failed.

That gold belongs to us, the Americans, and if it belongs jointly to the North and South Americans as a result of this deliberate co-mingling, who cares? There is enough gold to finance everything we would need for generations.

Thus the problem is not lack of gold or other resources and worldwide poverty and misery has never been the result of any natural lack at all. All that has been the result of mean-spirited greed and selfishness on the part of small-minded men, and an almost equally appalling religious philosophy extolling the virtues of poverty and suffering.

Virtues associated with poverty there may be, when one voluntarily denies oneself, but not when we are enforcing poverty and misery on innocents for no sane reason at all.

Some members of the Marcos Family have gone completely mad and acted in Breach of Trust, claiming that they have standing with respect to the American gold that they can't possibly have.

Please note that when the Philippine Islands were sold to the Territorial U.S. Government it was purchased "for" us using our money, so the Philippine Islands are our Possessions, and there is no land jurisdiction for the "Princess" to stand on and no excuse for pretending that the Trustees are the Beneficiaries of our gold. Any such claims are a serious Breach of Trust --- and as it is perfectly obvious, too, that our American gold did not come from the Philippines or anywhere in Asia, it's pointless to claim otherwise.

We are the beneficiaries of our gold resources, just as we are beneficiaries of our land and soil and water resources. So far as we know, the only one who has any claim on our gold is the British Monarch, who is owed a 10% share of mined gold when it is extracted, and we aren't quibbling about that.

We have all the wealth that anyone could ever need. All that needs to happen is some old fashioned accounting and some new tech delivery of relief directly into the hands of those who need it --- and the same is true on a worldwide basis. Thanks to the Egyptian gold and the gold of the Americas, there is more than enough to pay off every debt and dry every tear.

We've already figured out how to do that, so there is no excuse for any continuing delay or anger or fear or criminal efforts to kill off creditors or excuses for making obscene "Human GMO" claims or any of the other lies and evils.

We call upon the High Courts and the world's police and military forces to put the wheels in motion and arrest the criminals who have promoted the present worldwide disaster --- and let the rest of us get on with living and picking up the pieces from what these madmen have done.

Help has come from the North. The time has been shortened. And now everyone knows what is going on.

Anna Maria Riezinger, Fiduciary
The United States of America

See this article and over 3200 others on Anna's website here: www.annavonreitz.com

To support this work look for the PayPal buttons on this website.