

There Are Honorable Brits

By Anna Von Reitz

We've never said otherwise; yes, there are honorable, good people in every corner and every nation. Here's an example in Britain's favor, Craig Murray:

<https://www.craigmurray.org.uk/archives/2024/10/who-are-the-terrorists/>

Craig Murray has followed in the footsteps of Christopher Storey and other British Civil Servants, MPs, and even members of the House of Lords, who have retained their courage and conscience in spite of everything.

Among other things, Craig Murray has had the courage to tell the world, point blank, that ISIS is Israel, and Israel is ISIS. ISIS is a mercenary force drummed up by the IDF to play the foil in their passion plays. Laundering their payroll through MI6 doesn't change anything.

<https://x.com/DrLoupis/status/1863189600123936797>

The problem is, the Rotters are always active and self-aware, secretly sneaking around, bent on causing havoc and disguising themselves, while the good people among us tend to be peaceful souls, minding their own business, until something horrible happens.

And by then, it's often too late. The Vermin always seem to be just a step ahead of us, and usually, it's because they have the advantage of the Public Purse supporting them.

The problems the rats are busily creating --- on our dimes --- are already problems in full blossom before the rest of us wake up, get organized, and respond.

Like Chem Trails.
Like Geoengineering.
Like HAARP.
Like Dirty Bombs.
Like Lawfare.
Like Biological Warfare.
Like Spy cams in TVs.
Like bugged phones.
Like Drone Warfare.
Like Poisons in our water.
Like Poisons in our food.
Like 6G.
Like Smart Meters.
Like Covid.
Like Paradise, California.
Like Maui.
Like North Carolina.

Has anyone noticed yet, that all this and more has been used and promoted against us --- and developed at our expense in the name of protecting us, by our own dear militaries --- which have been commandeered to act as foreign mercenary forces, instead?

These are organizations that routinely lose trillions of dollars, repeatedly fail their fiscal audits, and face no accountability for it for more than twenty years at a stretch.

And where are the members of the U.S. Congress who are supposedly responsible for this malfeasance?

Out to lunch.

Many of us, who have been watching international news over the years in an effort to know what is actually going on in the world, remember seeing John McCain, late Senator from Arizona, jetting all over the world slapping backs with crime bosses (drug cartels) and leaders of known Terrorist Organizations. Say what?

Yes, it's all there in the archives. McCain was one of the most visible members of the Congressional Rat Pack, helping to fund Arafat, Hamas, and, yes, Isis. He was working hand-in-glove with MI6 as a loyal Tory servant of Her Royal Majesty, Elizabeth II.

Just this past October you have seen an example of MI6 paying one of these organizations, Hamas, to stage an incursion and create a False Flag excuse for Israel to go in and carpet-bomb Gaza and then, just for fun, Southern Lebanon.

All this destruction has occurred without a single real, actual threat to Israel from any government in the region. Or any independent "terrorist organization" either.

Gaza is the logical end point for a new alternative to the Suez Canal routed around the west side of the Sinai Peninsula; and naturally, they want to tap the Eastern Mediterranean Oil Basin right next door to the Mediterranean entry point of the new canal. They are already busy building the pipelines and plotting the infrastructure for the new oil refineries in the Gaza Strip. Go check it out on Google Earth.

The people living in Gaza were never told anything about this. Like the people in Maui and North Carolina were never told about planned real estate developments and mining operations coming to town. The name of the game in all these cases has been to genocide the actual owners and steal the land resources, because the people responsible for these attacks are criminals.

Criminals in very nice suits, but criminals nonetheless.

In the coming months, they plan to create a virtual firestorm of oil development and infrastructure development related to oil resources all over the planet, designed to make oil and refined oil products so plentiful and dirt cheap that nobody (but them) will even consider making the necessary investments in Zero Point Energy solutions for another hundred years.

Get ready for an oil exploration and development boom that will make the Gold Rush in California look tame.

If, that is, the Usual Suspects get their way.

Their reasoning is --- we'll pump out the oil and buy time to get a lockdown on all the Zero Point Energy tech, and be sitting pretty with a new energy monopoly in place --- and just keep on milking the Energy Sector forever.

All they need is a way to meter the Zero Point Energy and an excuse to charge for it. Block out any competitors. Patent everything.

Same old story. Exxon and various other Big Oil concerns have been buying up, stealing, or otherwise violently suppressing Clean Energy and Zero Point Energy inventions for the last hundred and fifty years. Everyone knows it. It's nothing new.

If they have their way, they'll just twist and turn and manipulate and divert and delay every new energy tech development right back into their own gaping mouths. They will pretend that this is necessary and desirable for "national security interest" reasons, and argue that their monopolies should all be protected as national security interests.

These are the modern day heirs of the 19th Century Robber Barons coming back to play the same old games, the same old way, complete with gross amounts of political payola to grease their wheels.

We are told that all the evil things summarized in the list above are going to stop. We are even told that the Internal Revenue Service will be no more. There'll be peace in the Valley, and cheap gas. All the new consumers in Africa will be buying American cars again.

They say it will look just like the 1950's all over again.

Maybe not Poodle Skirts. But like that. Farm girls thinking that it's daring to wear red lipstick and pluck their eyebrows, High School heroes proud to serve their country, good jobs, low insurance costs, government cut down to size and back in its box. Five cent Hershey bars. Nice little first-home Bungalows for $15,000.

But before we do our best Archie Bunker imitation and burst out into a refrain of, "Those Were the Days", stop. Stop and think. It's not really possible to go back to the Fifties again, and pretend that we're innocent. We're not.

The last seventy years, roughly the time period of the late-Queen's reign, happened. All this rot and banking fraud happened. We lost our innocence and our trust in "government". We can't be lulled back to sleep again and buy the narrative of "decentralizing government".

Take a good look at what they are trying to sell you:

<https://www.theburningplatform.com/2024/12/01/a-top-priority-for-the-musk-ramaswamy-doge-commission-decentralizing-the-federal-government/>

The corporations are headquartered in the District of Columbia and the City of Washington, DC, because that is the portion set aside for the Federal Subcontractors and their operations. That's why there is a distinction between the National Capitol in Philadelphia and the Federal Capital in the District of Columbia.

We never authorized the hire of millions of Federal Government Employees, the proliferation of over 400 Agencies, and hundreds of departmental bureaucracies, commissions, and blue ribbon committees. So, the down-sizing of government and government operations is a no-brainer, but so is limiting Federal operations to Federal enclaves.

Otherwise, "decentralizing" can look a lot like deployment and preparation for additional long term illegal occupation of our country.

Here is a seasonal-themed example of the tip of our iceberg -- and bear in mind, we checked out each and every one of these examples thinking this presentation had to be a spoof --- and found out that it wasn't:

https://www.tiktok.com/@joe_ditzel/video/7441975111583812895?_r=1&_t=ZP-8rl8AuNITFX

Pretty impressive, that we have bureaucracies checking the viscosity of turkey gravy, in a government that can't keep fluoride out of our drinking water.

All hail the decent Brits among us. Long may they struggle against the fetid tide of their own Monarchs and their own sordid, forever meddling government. We wish them speedy success.

See this article and over 5100 others on Anna's website here: www.annavonreitz.com

To support this work look for the Donate button on this website.