

Idiocy in High Dudgeon -- Modern Economics in Simple Terms

By Anna Von Reitz

This is an official communication to the High Courts regarding settlement and disbursement of public debts and private assets from the Fiduciary of the The United States of America [Unincorporated].

After the Second World War, someone had to play the world's Debtor, so the good ole USA was chosen to play that role --- even though that makes no intuitive sense at all.

The United States of America won the war, so logically, it was all the other countries who started the war, and those that lost, who should have been "the" debtors. One would think.....

But, that's not what happened at all.

Reality doesn't bend to our suppositions.

The end of the Second World War presented us with a globe in ruins. The people who lost were in ruins. Most of the people who won were in ruins. Most of Europe was a smoking pile of chaos ---and they were supposed to pay the war debt? And rebuild themselves, too?

Not possible. Naught into naught is naught, as my old friend, Jethro Beaudine, would say.

So the USA shouldered the debt of the entire world, accepted all the cost of rebuilding from Britain to Bangkok, kept its industries and people running at full tilt, as if the War was still on, and just changed gears for peacetime production.

And year after year after year the American workers continued to produce, produce, produce and send all the materials and gear necessary to rebuild the world at cut-rate basement bargain prices and even extended vast amounts of cut-rate credit to make it possible for all the other countries to buy what they needed for pennies on the dollar.

It had to be done.

You can't have a world economy without trading partners. You can't trade without products. You can't have products without restoring natural resources and factory capacity. So the USA gallantly set about the task of rebuilding Britain and the Commonwealth, France, Germany.... and the list went on.

It's a chicken and egg problem. Someone who was still capable had to prime the pump and bear the cost of rebuilding all these other countries, so that the world could get back on track again. And only the winners could possibly do that.

So, ironically, as the result of this factual Law of Nature, the USA became the world's Debtor and the "Dollar" in whatever form it took, became the "Reserve Currency" --- that is, the currency against which all other currencies are valued.

Things settled down, the Nazis went underground along with their pals in the Holy Roman Empire and the Japanese Empire, and for a number of decades we just slaved away, working our way through it, rebuilding everything and accepting the cost of rebuilding everything.

This is why the USA is still paying 96% of the cost of defending western Europe--- and that's after Donald Trump had the sagacity to insist that they should up their contribution by 2%.

Of course, when the cost of everything is resting substantially on one country and one currency, that country is accruing a tremendous amount of debt.

Whatever "the Americans" actually consumed in terms of hamburgers and toilet paper and cheap beer, it was comparatively nothing compared to what literally billions of other people all over the world consumed during those same years--- and charged off against the "US DOLLAR".

And this is how the "National Debt" ballooned to 25 Trillion and how 330 warehouses worldwide became stuffed with trillions of counterfeit "dollars" that were never entered into the Federal Reserve System, but which are nonetheless being used as cash by people all over the world and legered by banks as if they were actual dollars, just the same.

Imagine the situation. You borrow $10 from your buddy, Al, and on Saturday, you pay him back. Al tears up the I.O.U. and you give him the ten bucks and all is well. That's what is supposed to happen.

But what if "Al" never tears up the I.O.U. and even after you paid him back, he continues to hold the same debt over your head and charges you interest on it? Now, you are 'indebted' with all the world's debts, and the amount of debt not only increases, but accrues interest on top of it.

On one side of this ledger, you are the poorest man in the world, and on the other side of the ledger, you are the richest --- by definition.

So now you are being told that "the Biden Administration defaulted" on September 30th, and that "all Hell" will break loose on October 18th if the "US Congress" doesn't "increase the debt ceiling" and accept more debt.

But the US Congress can't accept more debt, because if they do, that will come out of their corporation's pockets, and it will no longer come out of our pockets --- that is, the pockets of the American People, because, as your Fiduciary, I said, "Whoa! Your credit account at the Bank of Anna is closed and subject to audit."

That is why the world is in such a mess. The cards have been called. The books have to be balanced.

The simple way to do this is to apply the American National Credit to the US Debt. By definition, the American National Credit is always equal to or greater than the US Debt.

So, as your loyal Fiduciary, I "accepted" the US Debt --- every penny of it, so that there was no more debt for anyone, including China, to siphon up or complain about.

All that is left is the "interest" which is supposed to be the profit to the USA on this whole deal, but like everything else, the Criminals-in-Charge messed this up, too.

Instead of charging simple interest, as intended, they charged compound interest. And instead of compounding it once a year, they compounded it daily.

And as nobody would ever believe how much debt this produces or imagine that any country could bear the results, they created "derivatives" to absorb this part of the US Debt.

Derivatives are basically phony accounts belonging to non-existent persons. If I were to become a character actor like Steve Martin, or Red Skelton, or the late great Gilda Radner, every one of all my "characters" would be "derivatives".

And it is this "derivative debt" that is still the problem, not only for us, but for the whole world.

Thanks to my action, the primary debt is gone and debt is no longer accruing on it. Part of the problem is solved.

Unfortunately, because certain people got greedy, the so-called "US National Debt" is the least of it. The "derivative debt" is still looming over everyone, especially Europe and China.

Europe is shame-faced about this, and China is angry, but in no case do these reactions help or solve anything.

Practically everyone in the entire world owes the "US" an insurmountable debt, and the "US" owes that insurmountable debt to us, the Americans.

That's how it all stacks out.

Some people, who are rather dim, thought that they could solve this problem by killing off their Creditors --- us.

This criminal mentality is part and parcel of how this problem developed in the first place. These same people thought that if some debt was good, more would be better --- like teenagers on a spending spree with a stolen credit card.

So now, the owner of that card, me, the Fiduciary, has called the bank and said, "Hey, I didn't make this charge."

No American ever authorized this. A bunch of "US citizens" purporting to act for us authorized this.

Now, the effect of this is rather peculiar.

All the banks in the world are now faced with the "insurmountable debt" flashing over onto their side of the ledger.

The Americans aren't going to pay a gargantuan debt they don't owe?
Who knew?

And the rats in the "US Congress" aren't authorized to access the credit cards?
Haven't been since 1860?

Holy Mother, Jesus, and Joseph! Call the police! Call the National Guard! It's the end of the known world! Lord, have mercy, we are so stupid and crooked, we don't deserve to live....

By "we" I don't mean the Americans. I mean everyone involved in this debacle, every country that benefited from it. What started out as a scheme to pass the buck and force the Americans to pay unimaginably more than is even possible, has yielded a world-wide meltdown and economic disaster, bankruptcy of all the banks, liquidation of all the currencies, utter chaos set to break out worldwide ten days from now....

Yet, there is a simple solution, even to this.

The Americans cap and forgive the debt --- gradually.

The Americans own the US and the US owns nearly everything else, so if we forgive the debts of the world, there is an automatic "reset" and Jubilee. If we do this with some common sense and do it gradually, nobody has to suffer at all; in fact, everyone is happy, because everyone has cause to be happy.

We forgive the debt gradually, beginning with monthly mortgage accruals. This allows everyone to stay in their own homes without being burdened by a mortgage. We also forgive basic utility bills, so everyone can stay warm and keep the lights on.

The American pre-paid credit is applied to all mortgages worldwide. I have said it. We quietly slip the value of our gold and silver reserves onto the books of the banks and require that they reduce the fractional reserve credit ratio to a sustainable and generous 3X the value of the gold and silver on deposit. I have set it.

Just wait until the banks see the value of the actual gold and silver reserves already on deposit. I can hear the corks popping from Bangkok to New York. We issue pre-paid "Vendor Cards" to everyone, worldwide. And this does not harm us or anyone else. The amount of the debt being gradually forgiven is so vast that we can afford to do this and not even blink.

We use the value of our corporate portfolio, which includes most corporations in the world, and the continual profits being realized from all our investments, to fund all government services from now on. There is never any need for any kind of taxation to fund essential government services anywhere in the world.

And, no need for tax collectors, either. The courts can go back to being courts and the "internal revenue" collectors can disappear. I have directed it.

We forego usury and compound interest on public debts from here on, so that stops any more accrual to the insurmountable debt. We dissolve all unreal public trusts and take possession of the assets, distributing them to each State and country and to each individual as an untaxed inheritance.

People can pay us back what we are really owed --- a simple debt of gratitude and fellowship.

China can stop rattling its sabers over Taiwan and anything else. Hollywood can scrap plans for the "Big Event". The Pentagon needs a vacation, anyway.

Pfizer, Moderna, Johnson and Johnson, and all other vaccine producers are ordered to stop production and distribution of all Covid-19 products --- by their actual owners --- the ones actually holding their charters; or else, they will be shut down and liquidated and all their executives will be sent to Inner City Detroit. In the winter.
