

International Public Notice: States and Impersonated Confederate States (of States)

By Anna Von Reitz

It appears that the level of ignorance in this world has approached critical mass, when young people in college don't know the difference between a State and a State of State.

They aren't the only ones. Middle-aged teachers, doctors, law enforcement officials and bureaucrats are equally befuddled and confused. Even people who declare themselves and join our State Assemblies are confused --- initially.

When we say, "State", we are talking about the actual State of the Union, a physically-defined parcel of land and soil enclosed within certain borders, together with its physical features and attributes, shorelines, flora, fauna, and living population.

When the "State of State" says "State" they mean either: (1) the State Trust they created in our names, or (2) they are referring to themselves as a "Confederate State" --- which they really aren't.

Think of it this way --- their State of State is not a match for our State, therefore, not a Confederate State of ours.

Example: Maine matches up with The State of Maine, which is its own Confederate State; Maine does not match up with "the" State of Maine, a British Territorial look-alike, sound-alike franchise corporation substituting itself for The State of Maine.

It's the American State of State that has the right to be called a Confederate State, but it's not currently in operation.

The usurping British Territorial State of State organizations are not our "States" and not our "Confederate States", either one.

The two things called "States" --- actual States that are physically-defined and substantial, and "Confederate States" (also known as States of States) that are inchoate and insubstantial business entities, are supposed to match up like Salt and Pepper: an American State should be coupled with an American State of State, but instead, we have American States being unequally yoked with British Territorial State of State organizations.

At the moment there are no American Confederate States present in this country and there haven't been since the 1860s. We don't actually need our Confederate States (of States) to conduct business, but it is necessary to know that we are being impersonated and misrepresented by British Territorial Knock-Off Artists.

This is part of the Great Fraud: Americans are being impersonated as British Territorial U.S. Citizens. British Territorial State Trusts are being used to impersonate the American States. British Territorial States-of States organizations are used to impersonate our Confederate States (of States).

We have already seen how these False Friends have contrived to unlawfully and secretly convert the political status of American babies to that of U.S. Citizens, by accidentally-on-purpose seizing upon and registering us along with their own population.

Should it surprise us that they would also unlawfully and secretively impersonate our States and substitute their own State-of-State organizations for ours?

That is precisely what they have done, and gotten away with, until now, when the depths of their perfidy, malice, and deceit have been plumbed. They have done all this to evade their contractual service obligations owed to millions of Americans, and promoted this vast fraud scheme as a means to unjustly enrich themselves at the expense of their actual employers.

The shame that accrues to the British Empire and the Holy Roman Empire and the Inner City of London and the British Monarchy and all their Partners in this Dirty Business, will not be glossed over nor forgotten.

Now the actual Americans have awakened and the American States have stood up and rebutted these cozy and self-interested suppositions by our Federal Subcontractors, Faithless Treaty Partners, and Dishonest Principals.

Notice to Agents is Notice to Principals; Notice to Principals is Notice to Agents.

We have resumed our operations over the past twenty years, have gathered our people, have brought the States of the Union back into Session, and reclaimed our Good Names; we have taken action to indemnify our trade, protect our own persons, and raise the alarm worldwide.
