

Jon McNaughton – Artist

By Anna Von Reitz

As most of you know, my husband, James Belcher, raised four kids on a paint brush in Alaska and has been a Signature Artist of the Oil Painters of America since 1994. So I really appreciate art and artists and the struggles they go through.

Earlier today (yesterday for most of you) I posted a photo of a painting. I didn't even have the name of it, much less the name of the artist, but it was so good I just had to post and comment.

The actual name is "Crossing the Swamp" and the artist is Jon McNaughton. It turns out that the work is available as a 16" X 20" open edition print, signed by the artist.

For anyone who loves what President Trump is doing in DC and appreciates fine art, you can't do better than this. A hundred years from now the heirs of the Antiques Roadshow will be peering at these prints and nodding sagely....
