

Know Your Enemy

By Anna Von Reitz

Quite apart from the political Mess, what we are fighting throughout the world today is a profane and ancient religion called "Mystery Babylon" in the Bible, and more flatly, in the common tongue, Satanism.

There are people who worship the Father of All Lies, and they are astonishingly common. Once you clue into their codes and by-words, they are easy to spot and they are roaming about in broad daylight, "doing what they will".

Lying and deceit of all kinds is a central part of their religion, along with using perverted sex as a sacrament, infanticide, tree worship, ritual cannibalism, blood-drinking, idol worship -- especially the worship of money, the use of "sacred groves" as ritual sites, the emblem of the owl --- the animal totem of their goddess Semiramis, also known as Isis, Ashtoreth, Astarte, Cybele, and Columbia, also known as the Mother of All Whores and the Great Abomination, the inventor of money and temple prostitution.

The emblems and statues and temples of this ancient evil are scattered all over the Middle East, North Africa, the Greek Peninsula, the Italian Peninsula, Turkey, Portugal, Spain, even Scotland and the Bohemian Grove in California. It's extremely widespread because it is a sea-going religion popular among sailors and pirates and traders who carried it world-wide. It is a death-centered religion that preaches what many consider common sense--- "eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die."

In their view, there is no value in virtue. None at all. And no logical reason to be virtuous, either. Just get down and wallow in every sin and "enjoy" yourself by indulging in alcohol and drugs and sex and death and pollution of every kind, lie every lie, experience every perversion, serve yourself first and devil take the hindmost. There's no heaven and no hell, just a short rope and a long jump.

So now that you know what you are up against, it will make more sense to realize that the people you have relied upon to promote justice have promoted just the opposite. The people you have trusted to protect you have often been your greatest threat. The people you trusted to heal your illnesses, have often been perverted into being the purveyors and cause agents of illness. There is a reason that the world so often appears to be upside down and backwards--- and it all comes back to the somewhat-hidden practitioners of this ancient and evil religion, who see it as their duty to their "god" to pervert and corrupt and twist and mirror and mock every virtue, destroy every truth, and promote every lie.

As you would expect of a religion that profoundly values deceit of all kinds, even the nature of their religion is duplicitous and deceitful, wrapped up in layers of "mystery" because if they exposed the "secret" up front, nobody would attend their meetings and get sucked into their institutionalized criminality and mental illness.

It has to be a "mystery"--- a "secret"--- "the way to power"----and they can't afford to tell you that 90% of it is old Egyptian sex magic and drugs liberally applied and the results then photographed to produce material for blackmail. That's it. The big "mystery" of Mystery Babylon---- sex, drugs, and blackmail.

So, instead, this is how they work their schtick. They recruit a broad spectrum of idealistic young people, most of whom have been turned off by conventional religion or who have had no exposure to religion at all, and they lure these kids in and evaluate them carefully. Those that appear to be obdurately good are placed on one path, and those that prove susceptible to their wiles, on another.

The purpose of the Good Path is to provide cover for all the rest of what goes on. The storefront angels are tasked to do silly, innocent things and good works in their respective communities, so that everyone accepts the presence of these secret societies as something innocuous (as some fraternal organizations actually are) or arguably good. And the beauty of it is, that those on the Good Path are never told anything different. Their initiations are all innocent and they can go bobble about doing good works and earnestly believing that what they are involved in is perfectly nice and respectable and sane.

Those on the other path are quickly feasted upon as sex objects and compromised on film and otherwise, in ways that they will never, ever, to their dying day tell anyone what they have done or what has been done to them, either.

And just to make sure, they are given plenty of notice and examples of what happens to anyone who tries to leave the pirate ship to Hell.

This bifurcation into Two Ways, or Paths, and the compartmentalization of knowledge into levels of initiation is their way of protecting their crime and sin syndicate, putting on a nice face to the public with one side of the operation, and enrolling new fodder for the sex and drug and influence peddling on the other.

There are drugs that make people extremely horny and potent, drugs that make them feel very powerful, drugs that give them super-endurance, drugs that make them hallucinate, drugs that make them susceptible to hypnotic suggestion, drugs that turn mousy little girls into wanton vampire-like creatures and young boys into killing machines. All this has been known since Ancient Egypt. It's nothing new.

It is, as they say, old as the hills---and yet, people go about their lives and duck their heads and pretend not to know anything at all about it. Satanism? Here? What??? Temple prostitution? In this day and age? Huh?

Their "churches" dot the landscape in every hamlet and village in America and Europe, so it is high time we paid attention to their existence and their beliefs and their practices -- their modus operandi -- how they operate.

So I just told you how they structure their basic organization, why they structure it that way, what the big "mystery" is--- drugs, sex, and blackmail--- how they work things incrementally, exposing the "mystery" only to those initiates that are susceptible, how they compartmentalize knowledge in order to keep control, and how they use fear of various kinds to keep control once they have someone hooked.

That's the Big Picture. Now zero down and look at some of their techniques. If you have been following along I've been pointing out their methods all along, so that you could look and see for yourselves. These people are utterly predictable once you know what to look for.

1. The pot always calls the kettle black. This old saying aptly describes their practice of accusing everyone else of what they are doing themselves, so as to keep attention focused on some other poor schmuck, and not on what they are doing. When someone raises their hand and points out any potential danger or threat, we are hard-wired to immediately focus our attention in that direction. It is automatic--- and in that instant while our attention is diverted looking for the non-existent evil, the real evil is playing its hand or escaping out the back door. The present tempest over Donald Trump's supposed "Russia connection" is a good example. Who actually sold the Russians 20% of American Uranium? Hillary Clinton.

2. They pretend to be their enemies, so that their enemies get blamed for their wrong-doing. For example, they pretend to be Orthodox Jews, grow beards, wear prayer shawls, join the synagogue, and use this false identity to commit crimes-- literally creating a "synagogue of Satan". They do the same thing with the Catholics and the Muslims and the Mormons, abusing the positions of trust they gain in these communities and ultimately discrediting the host group. This is part of their stock and trade--- and in order to pull it off, they have to be accomplished actors. They have to appear to be more Catholic than Catholic, more Muslim than Muslim, more Republican than Republican. So look hard and long at the most "devout" and doctrinaire and strict members of every group, the ones who are most vehement, most sanctimonious--- and what you will often find, is a Satanist hamming it up and going a little overboard in his or her role playing.

3. They pretend that their enemies are them, so that their enemies get blamed for their wrong-doing. This is just the reciprocal of the process described above, only AFTER they have managed to defame their target group---- and we just had an example of it. The Jesuits have lately been discredited and identified as defenders of pedophiles, so the vermin try to promote the idea that I am a Jesuit in an effort to smear me and discredit my work.

4. The skunk always smells its own hole first --- this frontier saying is yet another reminder to look closely at the ways and means of those bringing accusations against others. Often, though not always, people know about crimes and other ugly things because they or someone close to them was involved, so it is wise to consider those possibilities and not assume that every whistle blower is innocent.

5. The process of "mirroring" and appearing to be someone or something other than what they are or what they are talking about is endemic and applies to far more than just their practice of assuming the identity of their victims as discussed in the Synagogue of Satan example above. They deliberately confuse other things as well --- I just discussed a bunch of these things in my new book---deliberate semantic deceits designed to fool people into making false assumptions, like calling a private for-profit commercial corporation the "United States of America", or creating two things, one called the "Exchange Stabilization Fund" and one called the "Economic Security Fund" --- both abbreviated "ESF" --- and then carrying on "private conversations" in which one is substituted for the other, and the actual subject of the conversation is hidden in plain sight.

6. They also purposefully misstate and misrepresent things in other ways as well. One of the classic ruses used by dishonest lawyers is to take things out of context or to employ one of the semantic deceits described above to make it appear that the victim said something they didn't really say, and then disprove the deliberately falsified information. That is, they create a lie, disprove their own lie, and then take credit for appearing to "de-bunk" their victim. Larry Becraft has done that to my work and left the world a fine example of this on his "crackpot" website. Everything he alleges about what I supposedly said is a lie--- a deliberate "misunderstanding" resulting in falsification -- that he then disproves, and takes credit for disproving. This is done to discredit me, but when the truth comes out and he is held to account for it, he magically disappears and won't reply. This is also typical. This is called "dropping the Hot Potato" in hopes of not getting burned further by the truth. Silence is a Satanist's form of damage control. Take note of when a lawyer falls silent.

7. The basic rules and premises of propaganda and Yellow Journalism are all taken from the Satanist religion, too. The most enduring and favorite propaganda technique used by these Jokers is called The Big Lie. You just choose something hugely false and hugely helpful to yourself and keep repeating it and repeating it and repeating it in as many different ways and in as many different venues as possible. The classic is, "Sally isn't wearing underpants." --- Pretty soon, everyone "knows" that Sally isn't wearing underpants and it makes no difference at all whether she actually is or isn't. It's "common knowledge"--- and you can guess what such knowledge is worth. Whatever you think you know--- start questioning how you know it? Where did that "knowledge" come from? Who or what does the belief in that knowledge benefit? These hideously destructive taken-for-granted truisms are foisted off on gullible people every day and there are endless examples of it: Donald Trump is insane, black men are sex-crazed, rape victims asked for it, North Korea is a military threat, the Earth is over-populated, Global Warming is a fact, CO2 is the cause of Global Warming.... "Everyone" believes these things, right? "Everyone" can't be wrong, can they? Well, yes, they can be wrong and they can be downright purposeful self-interested liars, too, which is what Satanists are: Liars. The world is full of them. They infest every newsroom I know of, endlessly churning out false, slanted "news" calculated to control and direct "public opinion". If you don't want to be victims, wise up and take control of your own opinions.

8. Saul Alinsky's "Rules for Radicals" is just plagiarism of "The Devil's Handbook"-- a weighty tome created in 16th century Scotland as a training manual for Admiralty Attorneys. The only original thought Alinsky contributed was to use the same principles of evil in an organized way in political contexts. Remember that I said Satanism was a religion popular among sailors and pirates? Well, so, it makes sense that it infests the Law of the Sea and the traditions of the Admiralty and the Navies of the world, whose members are famous for enjoying "Liberty"---the wild sexual melee that happens when ships hit shore and sailors meet hookers, just as their land-locked brethren enjoy orgies of all kinds.

9. In politics, Satanism results in open, obvious, glaring falsehood. For example, the Democratic Party has for decades positioned itself as the champion of the common man, the little guy, the underpaid workers, the poor blacks and Hispanics. But in fact, the Democratic Party fought giving black people the vote tooth and nail, and bilked the Social Security Fund and lied through its teeth about its own actions when called to account. Last night, President Trump announced that black and Hispanic unemployment was at an all time low--- (granted, there was no proof offered)--- yet, doesn't it strike you as strange that the Democrats weren't on their feet, cheering and clapping and smiling? It's not about actually being the champions of the poor or the elderly or the working class. For Satanists, it is all about appearing to be the champions while actually bilking the treasury and making sure that the "constituency" continues to be poor and downtrodden. It doesn't take rocket science to figure out why so many Democrats took increased employment for blacks and Hispanics as bad news.

This is just a smattering of what is staring you right in the face, twisting your government, infesting your pulpits, thwarting your news organizations, ruling your "pop culture", destroying your health and in too many cases, destroying your ability and willingness to think.

And this, no less than knowing your actual American history, is part of your wake up call.
