

A Big Stick in Their Little Red Wagon Wheels

By Anna Von Reitz

With rights go responsibilities. You can't have one without the other.

In fact, you can't conduct international business without taking responsibility and liability for your actions and products.

And herein lies the rub.

The governmental services corporations that have been operating under color of law "as" our government are bankrupt and they are the one's on the hook for guaranteeing the safety of vaccines produced and used in this country.

As I explained the Big Pharma vaccine manufacturers went to the Municipal Congress back in the 1980's and said they were losing too much money due to lawsuits brought by people injured by their products. They were going to shut down production of vaccines entirely.

In reply, Congress said, oh, that's okay, we will shift the burden of responsibility for vaccine damage claims onto our shoulders (and pass it off onto the taxpayers, of course). And this was duly accomplished, giving the vaccine manufacturers a complete Out of Jail Card.

So the Congress and, purportedly, the Municipal citizenry (Federal Civil Service Employees and their Dependents) became responsible for paying damages to people harmed by vaccines manufactured or deployed in this country.

Except that both the Municipal and Territorial corporations are now bankrupt, so there is absolutely nobody and nothing responsible for any harm that results from vaccinations, voluntary or mandated, at which point the entire operation fails.

If there's nobody up front minding the store and taking responsibility for all these actions --- and I do mean financial responsibility, there is absolutely no possible justification for development or deployment of any product, including any vaccine.

No responsibilities, no rights.

No liability, no mandates.

Pope Francis, if you and your backers really do want to kill millions of people and have no liability, financial or otherwise for doing so, I am afraid your business must otherwise be disclosed and insured, and placed before the Public.

There will be no deployment of any unproven, uninsured RNA vaccine on our shores, Mr. Trump, and you are requested and required to arrest and prosecute any commercial entity and any Municipal Officer, including GOVERNORS, engaged in any such activity anywhere on our soil.
