

Mercenaries in the Civil War

By Anna Von Reitz

We all know about the Hessians used against the Americans in The War of Independence, but did you know they were used by the North in the Civil War, too?

Men from Central Europe, from Lithuania to Greece, were imported to fight for the North, but because these “new immigrants” came from diverse places and spoke different languages (and little English in any case) it wasn’t easy to identify them as mercenaries.

Now that we have the immigration records and powerful computer analysis tools it’s easy to see that these men were in fact deliberately imported to fight. This knowledge has led to more research and to finding actual advertisements published in Europe at the time which confirm this.

So Central European mercenaries did indeed fight in the Civil War, and not a small number of them, either. They formed up whole regiments.

Another thing we didn’t know about the Civil War, but which begins to pox-mark the picture when you examine what we would today call the Military Police records, are reports, mostly Southern, of truly horrendous and at the time inexplicable mass murders of Southern troops.

In these reports, bodies were found with their faces cut off— making it impossible to identify the victims; even more mysterious, there was very little blood associated with these obvious murders.

We now know that these men were the victims of adrenochrome harvesting.

By cross-matching these records with the movements of the immigrant mercenary regiments it is now possible to prove with certainty that these practices came here from Central Europe more than a century and a half ago.

Similar modern cross-matching studies have revealed similar patterns in the First World War and the Second World War.

Adrenochrome harvesting rituals came from Europe and were part of the battlefield experience of unknown numbers of men in the Civil War, First World War, and Second World War.

We cannot imagine the impact this had on the surviving witnesses, much less the dehumanizing effects on the perpetrators.

After the Second World War there is a sudden large uptick in the number of women and young girls being attacked, raped, and murdered worldwide.

At the time, it was assumed to be the result of the brutalizing effects of these wars on the men who fought them, but again, we find evidence of “blood - letting mutilation” and an even stranger correlation: the victims were almost universally the wives, daughters, or sweethearts of men who were deeply in debt, or single working women without close family ties.

After the rapes and deaths of these women, the men to whom they were attached rebounded financially in a staggeringly large percentage of cases, debts magically disappeared, investments flourished—suggesting that these women were sold to creditors as “sacrifices”.

It was a slippery slope from there to start selling children for the same purposes.

With the same results. Debts disappear. Money comes to the survivors.

The pattern is clear.

We now know, for sure, that we are dealing with a modern resurgence of Baal worship, which among other things uses snake venom and adrenochrome as drugs to achieve hallucinatory highs.

Cleopatra might not have meant to commit suicide via poison asp bite; she may have been bored and looking for an afternoon high — and simply overestimated her own built-up tolerance for snake venom.

Once you realize that this was part and parcel of Babylonian religion throughout the Ancient World and that this form of “worship” was what Moses, Elijah, and Jesus all struggled with, our modern situation makes a lot more sense.

The worshipers of Baal have been at various times all-but obliterated and driven underground as the murderous and depraved nature of this “religion” makes itself known.

Tales of blood-drinking vampires and madmen like Vlad, the Impaler, and images of Druids soaked in blood, remind us that these evils have a basis in reality and that basis is to be found in the evils attending the worship of money— aka, Mammon, and the Triumvirate of the Ba-El: Mammon, Molloch, and Shatan.

Money, Violence, and Lies wetted down with exotic drug abuse are the Hallmarks of this religion which is obliged to spread via Secret Societies and which beguiles its initiated by slow degrees, corrupting them via a combination of fear, lust, and self-interest.

Carrot and stick.

We are not surprised that Jon Benet Ramsey’s death was accompanied by a miraculous financial recovery.

We have films from the thirties, forties, fifties, sixties and seventies showing well-known Roman Catholic Church Officials, major politicians like FDR and Winston Churchill, movie stars and famous athletes engaged in hideous acts of rape, torture, and murder.

But perhaps what strikes us as the most damning thing of all, are the accomplices. The men who knew what was going on, who rolled their eyes, and jog-trotted away from the scene of these crimes, trying to shrug these horrors off as “ain’t my business”.

These purportedly “innocent” men who did nothing at all to intervene in behalf of all these hapless women and children are what Jesus called “lukewarm”.

Knowing full-well the evil going down and in some cases standing around like cows gaping through the open door of a slaughterhouse — these men stood around doing nothing to stop it, nor even report it.

No doubt on the last day they will say, “But Lord, I didn’t rape or murder anyone or get drunk on any innocent blood!”

And our Lord will say— get away from me, you Evil Doers, and go into the Darkness prepared for you, for you have done nothing to oppose Evil when you stared into the face of it.

All their Sundays at church will not avail them. No pleas about “not doing anything” will serve.

I watch them slink away in their cotton trousers and white t-shirts, their thin belts and slicked back hair, I see their faces from the distance of several decades and think of the results of their inaction coming to fruition now.

These movies were made for blackmail purposes and similar movies are still being made now.

It’s more than past time for everyone to wake up and see what they have been worshipping and how they have been — by their own inaction — letting this horrendous evil grow in our midst.

-----

See this article and over 2700 others on Anna's website here: www.annavonreitz.com

To support this work look for the PayPal buttons on this website.