Misinformation? --- For Max

The red-violet hue of the Violet Flame is the color spectrum representation of the harmonic frequency of love. That's why when we see this color in nature or in the sky, we know that we are in the presence of love. Love is expressed energetically by specific harmonic vibratory frequencies, just like octaves on a piano.

Red violet is the visible color spectrum expression of love.

Not every hurricane is accompanied by violet skies and then moderated, but both Hurricane Michael and Hurricane Milton were.

We don't suppose that this is a coincidence; miracles are always set within the framework of nature. They always work to heal and protect.

The people of Florida were spared a much larger disaster than what was originally meted out to them. A Category 5 storm is a hundred times worse than a Category 3, which is bad enough.

Florida took a licking, but not a kill shot. We can all be grateful that the storm was moderated in the final hours before landfall.

As for the common knowledge regarding hurricanes, that isn't all it's cracked up to be --- especially now.

The traditional explanation is that hurricanes spin counterclockwise due to low pressure zones that alleviate local rotational gravitation -- or so the theory goes; and the complaint is made that Hurricane Milton was not an unnatural storm as we have said, and that it was spinning counter-clockwise for known and accepted reasons.

However, those reasonings no longer apply:

Instead, it's the Coriolis Effect that appears to be stable due to low pressure gravitational effects, which in turn means that any natural storm center should now be associated with high pressure zones, not low, and should be turning in a clockwise direction as a result of the new rotational direction of the iron core of the Earth in agreement with the clockwise direction of the Coriolis Effect in the Northern Hemisphere.

Quite simply, there's nothing left to pull the water and wind in the opposing direction.

The best thing we can do, then, is to realize that both Hurricane Milton and Hurricane Helene and every counterclockwise-turning hurricane we have observed since the spin-reversal of the iron core of the Earth, is obtaining extra energy from some other source -- energy sufficient to overcome both the Coriolis Effect and the geomagnetic gravitational spin --- and is in fact unnatural according to everything we know.

Something has been used to create these artificial hurricanes and to inject enough energy into the Earth's biosphere to do it.

There's a new component on the block. Something beyond cloud seeding, beyond geomagnetic tracking and manipulation of storm fronts and "looping" the Jet Stream.

As the Earth's spherical iron sheath reverses the direction of its spin, new electromagnetic effects come into play. This is quite possibly a step toward the dreaded pole shift, which would serve to empower and direct it.

If so, the wisdom guiding it is built into Nature and pre-ordained as part of the regular shake up and housecleaning of the Earth, but the power we are observing --- the power to overcome both the rotational and geomagnetic effects of the Earth as it now stands, is something truly different and unknown.

However, knowing what we do know -- we can say this with certainty: these continuing counter-clockwise spinning hurricanes are no longer explainable according to conventional wisdom.

Given the circumstance, we may be wrong to characterize them as "unnatural" --- in that everything under Heaven is possible because it is built into the template of Nature, but it is certainly not anything we have encountered for thousands of years -- hence the reason we called it, "unnatural". At least in our experience, it is unnatural.

No living civilization has any memory of a spin reversal of the iron core sheath of the Earth, nor any documentation of its effects. No living civilization has documented the increase in the Schumann Resonance Frequency that we have seen.

And if Oumuamua is guided back into our solar system for a direct collision with the Earth, it will be a cataclysm on par with the Extinction Event that took out the dinosaurs.

So take it for what you will. Since 1987 and the work of Bernard Eastlund on the Star Wars Technology which included HAARP, the scientific community in the West has been working with the powers of nature in ways undreamed of until then.

Much of this Scalar Technology has been hidden from us and the patents on the resulting technologies have been largely redacted under the guise of "National Security" interests. Thus, average people and even people in civilian industries have been left behind and have no way of knowing or protesting the uses that the mercenaries have made of this new category of technologies.

The extent to which we have been misinformed and left in the dark may be summed up and personified by Benjamin Netanyahu.

We reported before that Benjamin Netanyahu changed his natural Given Name from something Russian or Polish sounding to Benjamin Netanyahu. Virtually all his cabinet members did the same--- but it gets stranger than that. Did you know that he is also a U.S. Citizen? With a Social Security Number issued to "John Jay Sullivan"?

We could not make this up. He's pretending to be Irish. And a U.S. Citizen---while running for office and occupying a major political office as an Israeli.

If you know any Sullivans who are Jewish, we want to know.

We mention this to underscore the idea that these men live by--- and that is that you can change the nature of a thing (or a man) by relabeling it. Thus, a rose by any other name would smell as sweet or a clove of garlic, too.

We aren't supposed to notice when they (or a storm) aren't spinning according to nature, or at least, what we know about nature.

You have Benjamin One, and Benjamin Two, and Benjamin Three, all acting in different roles and capacities, belonging to different nationalities, having different political statuses and obligations. And yet, it is just one man, obviously a British Territorial Corporation Shill working for Uncle Sam, yet "acting" (as in theater acting) as the Prime Minister of Israel. And socking away a federal pension as John Jay Sullivan at the same time.

Should it surprise us then, that these same men empowered by new and "secret" technologies have endeavored to confuse and befuddle and mislead the rest of us? Is this anything new?

No, it's not new, unfortunately. It has been going on in England and Scotland for at least 300 years and in Rome long before that. We are only now seeing the extension of this system of deceit and false identities, impersonation, identity theft, and barratry --- but it has been here and been on Earth for a very long time.

And it is time for it to go.
