

No, You Can't Charter Yourselfes

By Anna Von Reitz

You can't charter yourselves for the same reason that you can't be your own Mother.

There are many people thinking that if they need to "reconstruct" the Federal States of States, like The State of Georgia, they can just have a meeting and do it. Yes, but.....

That would be true, if you were all verified American State Citizens.

But thanks to undisclosed and nefarious activities by Territorial Contractors that you were never told about until now, you have been "placed" in a different political status --- that of "US Citizens" --- that is, you have been misidentified as employees and dependents of foreign commercial corporations.

That is an obstacle that prevents you from taking action as an American State Citizen, which means that with respect to restoring the Federal States of States, "you can't get there from here" until you change your political status back to what it originally was and what you have always assumed it was.

The Federal Government --- all three branches of it -- is inhabited by "US Citizens". US Citizens cannot charter themselves. They are already chartered and enfranchised and part of the Federal Government.

American State Citizens meeting in a Lawful Assembly are the only ones who can restore the Federal States of States, like The State of Georgia.

That is, the Federal State of Georgia, is an instrumentality of Georgia, one of the actual States of the Union, owned by the People of Georgia.

So the People of Georgia (American State Citizens) have to operate their State Assembly for their State, Georgia, and write a new or amended charter for The State of Georgia.

The People give rise to the State and the State gives rise to The State of State.

You have to be one of "The People" and operating in the capacity of a State Citizen to do this.

U.S. Citizens are not American State Citizens and they cannot do the job of American State Citizens. If they tried to do so, all they would accomplish is the creation of another franchise of their own corporation.

That is, as United States Citizens (Territorial) they would create a Territorial State of State.

As Municipal "Citizens of the United States" they would create a Municipal State of State.

And that is not what we are trying to accomplish.

So a lot of misinformed, confused, dazed and disoriented Americans need to pull themselves together, face the facts, expatriate from any and all Federal Territorial or Municipal citizenship conferred upon them, repatriate to their State of the Union, pull together their State Assemblies, and reconstruct the actual Federal States of States.

Thank you, I will take a breath.....
