

International Public Notice: No Cold War

By Anna Von Reitz

Like everything else in this country, information about the economy and the world economy is surprisingly difficult for the general populace to access and analyze. Part of this is a compartmentalization of information by the academics. Part of this is ignorance and therefore, disinterest on the part of the public. Part of this is merely the press-ganged nature of life in "the states" -- whichever states may be referred to.

People are kept too busy responding to every misguided alarm sponsored by the Mainstream Media, too strained to make enough money to live at peace, and too busy trying to find a life with the few hours left of their days to worry about economic issues. It's only when they wake up and realize that the price of nearly every food and drug item has doubled or tripled that they nudge grudgingly toward interest in the economy.

The attitude has been--- we work night and day to hire experts to take care of all that economic stuff for us. We're not economists, right? Our employees should be taking care of all that for us. That's the job of the Federal Reserve, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the New York Stock Exchange, the Comptroller of the Currency, the Secretary of the Treasury, the.....

Unfortunately, all these institutions and offices are politicized and corrupt and largely incompetent, seduced by the post-World War II occupation accommodations in Europe and Japan, and the creation of the Federal Reserve Note as the "reserve currency" of the world, the establishment of the Economic Security Fund, and other measures, into thinking that the US Empire would last forever.

As Richard Wolff points out in this video (below), such an expectation was never rational, and yet, the politicians and institutions of this country seem stuck in the past, unable to correctly analyze either the present or the future. This has resulted in economic and policy blunders of epic magnitude, which, strangely enough to the uninitiated, are not American at all.

They are the result of the myopic, elitist, bully boy politics of the British Parliament and British Crown, which continue to use and abuse American military muscle and economic resources for their own agendas --- thinly disguised as "American" initiatives.

As Wolff observes, there were already 149 countries out of 196 opposed to Israel's aggression against the Palestinians and in favor of a Palestinian homeland BEFORE the most recent genocide in Gaza, and invasions of Lebanon and Syria began. The atrocities committed by Israel have led to Norway, Spain, and Ireland withdrawing their support and joining the countries in support of a Palestinian homeland.

This is largely political reality, because the people have seen and heard enough of what Israel is doing to take a stand against it, while in this country the bought-and-paid-for Zionist controlled media, like the media in Britain, covers up the truth and feeds us a constant narrative about the noble Israelis and their endless struggle against Anti-Semitism.

Maybe if they would stop wholesale murdering their neighbors we would feel more warm and fuzzy toward them.

That makes it 152 out of 196 countries standing against Israeli violence and aggression. The only major power acting in Israel's pocket is The United States, and The United States is being worked like a sock puppet by Britain --- the Company --- that caused the whole Mess in the Middle East in the first place.

Please spend the brief amount of time that it will require for you to understand the economics, the insanity of the current situation, and the history of tariffs --- just in time for Donald Trump to start threatening everyone in sight with tariffs.

This threatens to further isolate the American economy and damage our position worldwide, but like all the other moves that USA, Inc., and NATO have made, the abusive use of tariffs will reliably fuel inflation, shortages, loss of buying power and a faster and more violent demise of America as a world leader.

This is not coming at the hands of Russia or China. This is the result of population growth, earlier boneheaded economic sanctions that shoved the BRICs nations together, and lack of a realistic plan to adjust and coexist and maybe even respect and support each other as peaceable and responsible neighbors.

Please listen to Richard Wolff's practical, sensible, easy-to-grasp explanation of the economics and the politics of the present situation. Realize that this is not the Cold War and that China and Russia have moved on, along with India and Brazil and the other member nations of BRICs.

Notice also that Britain has joined BRICs and left us to suffer on our own little pity potty, yet another example of Britain's malicious and self-interested chiseling, seeking benefit from both sides of every situation that their agents have created.

Isolating America and making us their scapegoat with one hand, and cozying up to and securing a place for themselves at the BRICs table with the other, Britain continues to play a deceitful two-handed and fork-tongued game of misdirection, malfeasance, and abuse, and continues to ignore the will of the British People, regarding BREXIT and nearly everything else.

We have to ask --- in what sense is this Company calling itself "Great Britain" a nation or a country? And by what right does it continually meddle with and occupy other countries using deceit, color of law, and other tactics reeking of secretive criminality?

The one thing that Richard Wolff doesn't cover is the fact that the United Nations has stood by and profited from the illegal British Territorial military occupation of the British Homelands, the former Commonwealth, seventeen European countries, Japan, Iraq, Libya, and numerous other sovereign countries which have been usurped against in breach of trust and violation of international law by this same Company calling itself "Great Britain".

When you add this to Richard Wolff's brilliant and brief summation of world economic history and current conditions, it is apparent why the United Nations has failed its mission and why it and all its Municipal Corporation franchises, including WHO, Inc., should be dissolved.

Beginning now, we should all stop and consider the fact that Companies and Corporations are not now, and never were, the governments of countries. All this rot has been brought to us by criminal corporate interests and corrupt corporate bureaucrats seeking to defraud their own employers.
