

New York City is the United Nations? Really?

By Anna Von Reitz

I challenged my researchers and readers to do a little research project about who owns the UN Corporation, as opposed to the "United Nations" organization chartered in 1945.

One of my Good Buddies promptly replied with this gem, which I remember and which I have seen before regarding the UN, but which I misplaced in my files somehow.

Here it is again for those of you who missed it first time around. It doesn't answer the Big Question of who owns the UN Corporation (and what other corporations does UN Corp own?) but it does shed light on dark places that deserve to be lit up -----

"New York City" is defined in the Federal Regulations as the United Nations.

Rudolph Gulliani stated on C-Span that "New York City was the capital of the World" and he was correct: 20 CFR chapter 111, subpart B 422.103 (b) (2) (2).

Unless the rats have since done their favorite trick of renumbering things, this reference should still be very accessible.

So, since when did all our national governments die and leave the United Nations as the capital of anything but a lot of hot air, hideous "agendas", fraud and corruption?

And since when did NYC become the United Nations? In whose dictionary does that one appear?

Obviously, the treasonous rats in the Territorial United States Congress have been up to their old tricks again, redefining "special terms" for their own use, like redefining the word "person" to mean "corporation"....

Pretty soon black will be white and rich will be poor and nasty old men like Gulliani will appear as angels of light.

Stay tuned, Campers. Lady Flamolare del Chesa (c) has yet to sing the Aria....
