

A Small But Very Important Distinction -- a Special Spotlight

By Anna von Reitz

This is a repost for everyone who is still confused about how vaccines are supposed to work---- and don't.

"While we're told that "vaccines" work by giving us a small amount of a toxic substance—e.g. a bacteria or virus— in turn allowing us to create immunity against future infections, what the injections actually do is make us vulnerable to said toxins. Furthermore, "vaccines" prime our bodies to react badly to anything that's injected into us, including benign substances like milk or egg proteins. Hence the proliferation of allergies, such as allergies to milk, eggs, wheat, peanuts, etc.

Incredibly, Latypova explains how this has been known since 1913, when Charles Richet—a French physiologist and self-proclaimed eugenicist—won a Nobel Prize for figuring out that injecting animals with toxins primes them for harmful or deadly reactions if they encounter the same toxins in the environment, even in small amounts. He called these reactions "anaphylactic" reactions, but said that these reactions also included allergies."

We have been lied to and led to misinterpret the mechanism that causes so-called vaccine immunity. It's actually induced anaphylactic shock.

So, regarding all those 55 "extra" ingredients found in the Covid-19 vaccine, your body is now allergic to them and working overtime every time one of those substances is encountered. And always will.
