Stop the Presses! Public Notice!

By Anna Von Reitz

Modern cryptography is based on computer "keys" --- complex binary identifiers that unlock programs and "subroutines" that endlessly modify and jumble other equally complex "blocks" that act like locks to access other programs. Sigh. Oh, what a tangled web we weave....

But, there are older systems of cryptography, which simply means "secret" or "hidden" writing, going back to Megalithic times. These were in use for thousands of years and all over the planet, and these are what intrigued us, because although their pictographic meanings are often obscure to modern minds, they are actually more advanced than our binary system and so-called quantum models.

Instead of tracking numbers and digits and pieces of the paper, these Megalithic Ciphers track resources, magnetic nodes, ley lines, maps to other star systems, history, lineages of people, treaties, and all sorts of things that are otherwise hidden from us. Because they are so different from modern systems and because so few people study them, it is perhaps not surprising that these were the codes chosen to hide the most closely guarded secrets of the banking industry.

In a way, Karen Hudes was right. We have been blown back to the stone age, but not by The United States of America.

First, a little bank history. Everyone heard of UBS? This bank was founded in modern times in Switzerland in 1862 (note-- just after the "American Civil War" started) as the Bank in Winterthur. It has since grown into the largest private bank in the world, but if you look at its familiar three crossed keys logo, which also appears on the Vatican Coat of Arms, what do you see?

Is it United Bank of Switzerland or Urban Bank of Serbia? And what is the Urban Bank? The bank of the Urban Trust. And what is the Urban Trust? The Trust of the City of Rome, founded 753 BC. The three crossed keys stand for the three keys of enslavement --- mind, body, and soul.

And who subverted and converted the principal of the Urban Trust? Jamie Dimon, the CEO of JP Morgan. I'd have a heart attack, too, if I were him, because he and his buddies have been messing with things that are thousands of years old, things that he could not possibly understand. And JP Morgan acted as the receiver and distributor of purloined private assets to banks all over the world.

We know, because we have the testimony of the heirs and the assigns of the trusts, and the bank transaction history showing the deposit with JP Morgan and the re-assignment of assets to all these other banks. So it is not in dispute how JP Morgan finagled -- without full disclosure -- to obtain the signature authority to secure the deposit of the Urban Trust Assets, nor is it any secret how JP Morgan distributed the assets to the other banks.

So what does this theft of Urban Trust Assets by JP Morgan have to do with UBS --- and you? It basically represents the re-capitalization of bankrupt central banks using private assets without the consent of the depositors. Think of it as the biggest illegal bail-in in human history.
UBS is indeed the largest private bank on Earth and during the furor of the Second World War, it's Receipt Book was stolen. It disappeared like the Nazi gold, right from under our noses. The records from 1862 onward showing which nations borrowed from which nations and which financial accords were signed that affected private bank deposits --- all of it --- vanished, along with depositor records--- that is, the receipts showing who deposited what.

This left UBS (and the Urban Trust) in possession of vast amounts of private assets, and not a clue who any of it belonged to. No record of the depositors, and only account-level records of the assets.

Think of it as the ultimate "Swiss Banking Gone Wrong" scenario.

This led, in 1963, to the famous Green Hilton Memorial Agreement, which was aimed at unlocking all the assets the Americans deposited in the Philippines, and all the "abandoned assets" from "unknown sources" that were in the Urban Trust and in limbo because of the missing Receipt record. The circumstance concerning the missing Receipt records is referenced at the very beginning of the Green Hilton Memorial Agreement, which admits it is being substituted for lack of the Receipt book.

Enter Julius Divinagracia, gatekeeper of the asset accounts, complete with all the account-level information that did survive WWII, insisting that the accounts be assigned to him, which, in the absence of any other private authority or record, the Principals all agreed to. They all signed off and granted him Power of Attorney to settle the issues, and bypass the Green Hilton Memorial Agreement, because his information was the most complete and accurate description of the known private asset accounts.

He was promptly picked up by the CIA and cashiered away as a permanent US Resident, unable to travel or speak or do much of anything to exercise his Powers of Attorney, thanks to the same False Registration processes that were used to defraud everyone else in this country. They gave him a new name and he "disappeared" leaving the funds once more in limbo.

Enter Ernest Rauthschild, yet another one of them, making a claim to own the "abandoned" assets in the name of the "indigenous people" of the Earth.

We are all "indigenous" to the Earth, but he means to restrict that meaning to brown and black skinned people, attaching some special (and specious) importance to how much melanin one has in one's skin. That is, a new basis for claiming to be "special and elite" and another new basis for oppressing people based on physical characteristics. More of the same old crap.

Unable to locate the actual Julius Divinagracia and the records, Ernest has brought forward one of five CIA "plants" who have been groomed to play the part of Julius Divinagracia, and has been using this man to claim the ability to open the asset accounts.

Right. Only he's provably not the actual Julius Divinagracia..... and nothing he says or signs counts for anything, because the Powers of Attorney were not issued to him.

Meantime, we are suspicious, because Receipt books of major private banks and such ancient and venerable Trust organizations don't just go missing.

Someone gave the Receipt book of the Urban Trust to someone for safekeeping.

And who would that be?

Princess Alice of Battenberg, Mother of Prince Philip, who received it from the Eastern Orthodox Church Patriarch who was entrusted to carry it out of Serbia following the blitzkrieg through Czechoslovakia, and who was intercepted by the Greek Government en-route to Istanbul.

All this cloak and dagger is about a missing, albeit, very important bank receipt book.

Following our principle that the Brits are reliably at the bottom of every dog pile, we started looking in Britain first ---- and guess what?
Yes, there it is, the long-lost missing UBS Receipt Book, chopped up, re-distributed, all the pieces whereabouts and content hidden. The people who received the pages were simply told to "keep this information in a safe place" and had no idea what they were holding onto or why.

 Obviously, accidentally-on-purpose the Brits carried their "safekeeping" a bit too far, and that turned into their subsequent denial of knowing anything about anything at all.

 One is reminded of Sergeant Schultz --- "I know nothing! I see nothing!"

 Everyone knows Princess Alice wasn't herself. What Receipt book? When, where, why, who? What are you talking about?

 Meanwhile, of course, the pages were all photographed by the British Government. Eventually these were transferred to micro fiche. And later, they were made into digital files. The key to the dispersal was modernized. And then the whole pile was hidden under a Megalithic Cipher code system that nobody but Indian Jones could make head nor tail of and hidden away.

 We are pleased to announce that the missing Receipt has been found, completely recompiled with recent records since WWII, copied to flash drives, and distributed all over the world, so that there is no longer any doubt about the provenance and ownership of any of the actual assets held as "Special Deposits" in any bank in the Urban Trust network.

 The so-called "Private Bank Crisis" is over, and both the account information and the original Receipt book is recovered and under the protection of The United States of America.

 It's not the corona virus causing all the upset and scrambling, except for the weak-minded among us. It's the exposure of many, many, many dirty bank deals and international intrigues going back to the Civil War days, coupled with the need to shut Washington, DC, down for 90 days to complete the bankruptcy of the UNITED STATES, INC., under some pretense, that is mandating the chaos.

 Face the fact: the corona virus is a bust. It's highly contagious, yes, but it is not nearly as deadly as some parties had supposed and hoped. The spectacle of all these "quarantines" and hysteria and hype is staged. It's all BS. The virus itself is about as dangerous as a bad case of flu, which is to say that it is no reason for hysteria and also to note that quarantines are useless.

 The United States of America hereby serves Public Notice that upon the dissolution of the primary Municipal United States Corporation, all assets are claimed, re-conveyed, and re-venued to The United States of America, our unincorporated Federation of States, and to the States and People of this country acting in our sovereign capacity to conduct our own business affairs as a civilian government.

 Acknowledgement and acceptance of the return of our delegated Powers upon the incapacity of the Subcontractors already stands on the Public Record and has been published worldwide. The return of our assets to our control and our international domain, also follows upon default by Operation of Law.
