

Granna Bytes — Storm Moderation

By Anna Von Reitz

Way to go, guys! A special "Well done!" to Texas! You blocked the sock!

As you can see on the weather maps the "punch" intended for the Southeast has been greatly moderated and the jet stream itself has been pushed back and humped up to the North across the midsection of the country instead of driving in a unified curve straight into the Southeast.

This is slowing the wind speed and deposition pattern of the snow.

The intended Minus 80 temperatures have been dialed down to Minus 25 range which is bad enough in some areas, but still much more survivable temperatures and wind speeds.

Let's continue focusing on calming and moderating the storm and moving its terminus a couple hundred miles further east and out to sea.

Meantime rescue efforts are being made to get help to some of the most remote and hardest hit communities in America, including communities that were already hit by Hurricane Helene.

Let's shove the weather tech back whence it came from and jam the Star Link satellites being used to generate this storm phenomenon at the same time we send physical assistance to Spruce Pine, North Carolina.

Use your (formerly) dormant energetic powers to shift the storm terminus a couple hundred miles East and out to sea.

Then use the force field mirror you already put in place to reflect the satellite transmissions back to their sources— create a feedback loop — so the electronic transmission that is being used to drive the jet stream and create this storm phenomenon is bounced back to the source of that transmission.

Let them "enjoy" some of the fruits of their handiwork and fry their transmission system, their antennas and their satellites and computers.

You CAN do this simply by standing wherever you are and consciously envisioning the storm terminus lifting and moving a couple hundred miles east, out over the Atlantic Ocean.

Continue to give the storm simple commands to quiet and warm itself.

Imagine the electronic equipment being used to drive the jet stream and generate this storm being hit with a massive feedback and jamming frequency.

Imagine their entire grid being fried by their own transmission, so that the more watts of power they put in their antenna array, the more gets reflected right back at them.

Having focused attention on this for a few concentrated minutes — let it go. What you have. Empowered will happen. Be sure of that and go on about your business.

Next, think about what can be done to get help to the poorest of the poor in Appalachia. Spruce Pine is one of the communities that was remote and hard hit during Helene and here it is, getting hit again.

Their worthless Governor is being worthless again.

Envision him being gone as if he never existed and all the elderly and poor young families being saved.

Imagine convoys of semis pulling into the parking lot staging area in Spruce Pine, North Carolina, filled with blankets, fuel, water, food — everything that is needed. Imagine giant plow trucks. Imagine horses pulling sledges and snow tractors arriving from northern states.

Now ask yourselves what you can do to make it so?

This is more than an energetic projection. Take some little physical action — whatever you can do. Pick up the phone. Write a letter. Send a donation to PKTF, via their website. Send a donation directly to the impacted State Assemblies. Contact people you know in North Carolina and Tennessee.

It is a logistical problem but we were born to overcome such problems. Engage your new-found energetic and intellectual gifts and combine these gifts with physical action.

And watch true magic happen.
