

International Public Notice: Reality Test for Governments

By Anna Von Reitz

Those who have been bothering to listen to Kamala Harris interviews and speeches have been fascinated to know the origin of her often-repeated saying, "What can be unburdened, by what has been."

It's an unlearned translation from Karl Marx's German version.

It's basically talking about erasing history and obliterating the past in order to build something new --- the Communist State, which will purportedly be better.

She's on her Marxist Soap Box saying, unburden yourself from the past. Don't learn history's lessons. Just open the door to chaos and demagogues. It will all sort out in the end, when enough blood has been spilled.

So she is announcing the familiar liturgy of government overthrow and cyclic ruin imposed on the slumbering public by the elites, in this case, Communist Elites, like President Xi, who apparently sold out to the Brits.

Governments have a known life cycle. They arise, they thrive for a time, they become corrupt, the people rebel, everything devolves to chaos, new leaders arise ---- and a new government begins, with no guarantee that it will be any better than the old government.

All governments and all populations worldwide would do well to observe what John Adams observed in 1761: the only valid reason for a government to exist is to protect the people and their assets.

Say it again, the only valid reason for a government to exist is to protect the people and their assets.

If your government doesn't do that, there is no reason to pay for its "services", because those services are not serving you.

They are serving themselves. Or they are, as in our case now, serving hidden foreign interests.

The form of the government --- republican, democracy, theocracy, communist, even fascist --- matters less than the leadership and purpose of the government.

If the people are safe and happy and secure in their homes, then that government is doing its job by them and it should have no cause to fear an insurrection or spend money constantly surveilling and tracking people.

Surveillance and fear of insurrection is like an oven timer beeping, saying that the government is done. It isn't doing its job and it's scared of the consequences.

So what do we have all over America, and especially in the major cities? Fear. Ever-increasing surveillance tactics and technology. Degradation and demoralization of police forces. Rampant corruption, blackmail, and payola. Why?

Because the nasty little bureaucrats aren't doing their job, aren't providing their services as stipulated under contract, and instead of protecting the people and their assets, these monkey-minds are busy stealing from the people they are supposed to protect.

No wonder they are scared.

The Breach of Trust by both the Holy Roman Empire and the British Territorial United States Government is so ripe, so disgusting, so obvious, that members of the British Territorial U.S. Congress have to hide, and the HRE, INC. is locked down, wondering when the anti-Christian pogroms begin because of them.

It's not the brand name or the ideology. It's the leadership and the purpose. And at the end of the day, it's the result, the fruits of a government, that tell the tale.

Are the people well and happy, free to live their lives? Are they protected from evil? Secure in their hearts and minds?

Then by whatever name, they enjoy good government.

And if not, then they need to give their government a Pink Slip, and hire another one. It really shouldn't be any more dramatic, destructive, or traumatic than that, yet, too many times it is --- and for one reason: bankers.

The bureaucrats get in bed with the bankers and then, the bankers keep paying the bureaucrats the people's money, no matter how far off track the bureaucrats get or how bad the "service" is. This leads to ever increasing corruption and flagrant abuse of power by the bureaucrats, until the people have to: (1) prosecute the bureaucrats and bankers as criminals, or (2) forcefully remove them.

There is never any need for violent insurrection or revolution, so long as the People hold the purse strings and the Power of the Pink Slip ---and not just at the ballot box, but also administratively.

We don't fight with our employees; we fire them. We send them home. Not eligible for rehire. And we hold the bankers feet first to the fire, to make sure our hiring and firing decisions are honored.

The UNITED STATES, INC. has been fired and bankrupted for Cause. Their former Agents and Agencies are not to be refunded or rehired by any Subcontractor of ours for any purpose whatsoever.

The British Territorial Federal Subcontractors doing business as "the United States of America" --- Incorporated, purloined our silver and gold and deposited it with various central banks, leaving those banks with the false impression that these assets belonged to them or to professional Metals Depositors, like Severino Sta. Romano, who were employed to make these deposits for us. The banks are being called out for this misapprehension and fraud, as many of them have cause to know better.

We are the Funders, Employers, and Source, the preferential Priority Creditors, and our States and People are the Principals owed every jot of every Federal Constitution ever written. It is now levied upon the banks to stop funding illegal wars being promoted in our names and to cease and desist the abuse of our assets, natural resources, and credit without our conscionable agreement.

Notice to Agents is Notice to Principals; Notice to Principals is Notice to Agents.
