

A Note to American Catholics

By Anna Von Reitz

It has been -- wrongly -- alleged that I "hate" Catholics. This is not true.

I have cause to know the core values that sincere Catholics hold dear, and however I differ in doctrine, I can respect and appreciate the many contributions that the Roman Catholic Church has made to the progress of civilization and the cause of "organized compassion".

Knowing the good and even great side of the Church does not overall persuade me to approve of the terrible things that have been done in the name of its secular administration --- things like the Inquisition.

Perhaps I am naïve, but I believe that a large proportion of modern Catholics would disapprove of the Inquisition and its methods and stand with me in opposition to the use of cruel and unusual punishments to enforce what are, in the end, religious beliefs and doctrines.

Similarly, I believe that a large percentage of modern Catholics would not approve of the issuance of Baptismal Certificates as Clearinghouse Certificates representing warehouse receipts for "souls" being trafficked as commercial commodities.

For that matter, I can't imagine many modern Catholics approving of the sale of Indulgences, which are basically, a license to sin.

Throughout its history, the Church's secular administration has acquired a tainted reputation for graft, deceit, and abuses ranging from breach of trust to racketeering to human trafficking and worse.

This is, most likely, the result of entrusting the Church's financial affairs to Sephardic Jews who are Talmudic Levites.

Though these individuals are very accomplished in their craft and competent to deliver profit, they view their customers with the same contempt they hold for all Christians, and appear to take pleasure in investments and business practices that embarrass and defame the Church.

So what is the Talmud and what is a Talmudic Levite and why should doing business with these Jews be any different than doing business with generations of Jewish traders and bankers ever since the Roman Empire?

The Talmud is a collection of rabbinical teachings and analysis of the actual scripture, the Torah; it began being collected during the Middle Ages and serves as a Commentary --- a written discussion about the meaning and the practice of the Laws presented in the Torah, that is, the first five books of the Bible.

Unfortunately, the Talmud gives vent to the personal feelings and prejudices of the rabbis who wrote this commentary, and encourages not only Jewish elitism, but an active and cruel contempt for what the Talmud calls "the Goyim" -- the Gentile people of the Earth, including Catholics.

"Talmudic Levites" -- a name they gave themselves -- use the Talmud apart from the Torah, as a source of law, and not just an interpretation of the Laws of God and Moses contained in the actual scripture. Thus you have rabbis who teach the Torah, those who teach the Talmud, and those who teach both.

This is how we have the Law of the Land, known as The Ten Commandments, and the Law of the Sea, known as the Noahide Laws, all "interpreted" by the writers and practitioners of the Talmud.

Catholics need to examine the situation and ask themselves and their priests --- is it wise to leave our assets under the management of Jews who earnestly believe that we are lower than cattle in the realm of creation?

That it is fair for them to murder us, in extremely nasty ways, simply because we are Christians?

You should be asking yourselves, what would such men do with our Church's money? Money that is supposed to spread the Gospel and comfort the sick and the poor?

Would you be surprised to learn that it is instead being invested in glitzy new high-rise office buildings, luxury condominiums, and Disney movies preaching normalization of transgenderism and homosexuality?

What can you expect? These men have contempt for you and everything you stand for. They believe that God gave them the right to do anything they want to do to you --- rape, pillage, and plunder, disgrace, disserve, cheat, lie, murder, enslave --- whatever it takes to slake their lusts and fill their plates.

Not all Jews believe these evil things, but Talmudic Levites do.

They think they are the Chosen Ones, the only ones with any rights, the only ones to be served, the Lords and Masters of all they survey, to nurture or to destroy as they see fit. They have no respect or care for anyone outside their group of True Believers, and you can now see the results of that whole mindset playing out in Gaza.

The so-called Palestinians, who were labeled as such by the constantly meddling British, won the jackpot. They had clear and easy access to the Eastern Mediterranean Oil Basin right off their coastline in Gaza.

So the Talmudic Levites contrived a False Flag and paid the Hamas Mercenaries to stage an "incursion" into Gaza. They even laid down their own border defense perimeter to expedite this incursion, which was their own excuse to attack the Palestinians living in Gaza.

They are cold-bloodedly murdering these people in Gaza to steal oil that would otherwise belong to "Palestinians" --- but which will now belong to the State of Israel, Inc., the latest franchise corporation of the USA, Incorporated. While they are bombing and excavating Gaza and its people into oblivion, they are building the oil refineries and pipeline infrastructure to extract and ship the oil --- and all while playing the victim of Palestinian aggression.

These same people moved the "New York Stock Exchange" to Tel Aviv, where they endlessly manipulate world commodity and stock markets.

Do you, as Christians, as Catholics, want to be affiliated -- through your Church investments -- with this filth and violence and elitism and corruption? Do you want your money backing this?

We want a completely different, honest, peaceful world. So we are "voting" with our feet and lifting our voices, and no longer paying attention to the authorities who have misled us. We've created our own banking system, issued our own asset-backed currency, and are developing our own network of people worldwide who want peace and decency --- and want to invest in that, instead.

I learned a long time ago that I can't change anyone else, and that includes changing the way they think, what they spend their money on, and what they believe. I also learned that I can't fix evil.

So I don't try. And I don't waste my time or energy on hate.

I will simply invite you to look at who you've got investing your money and what they are investing in. I will invite you to join our new banking network, if you want a better world.

If not, you can see what you've got.
