

Arkansas is "Blowing Apart"

By Anna Von Reitz

One of the most colorful parts of my husband's life as a young man involved working in the oil fields and mining districts, where he met larger-than-life "characters", some of whom became friends for life and some of whom were shady at best.

These latter sorts as my Grandmother would say, "bore the mark of Cain" and couldn't tell right from wrong or up from down. As a result, they had a talent for confusing everyone else, too.

It would start out with something small and a rationalization --- for example, you had to travel forty miles out of your way because of a landslide to get to work, so you snitched a couple gallons of gasoline from the Company tank.

Well, you had to get to work, didn't you? The Boss would have split a gasket if you didn't show up on time, right? And it wasn't your fault there was a landslide! Why should you have to make up for that by spending your gas as well as your time?

You all see how this works.

As above, they rationalize a petty theft, and if the employer doesn't catch it, things just sorta expand from there until over time, you have entire generations of people and networks supporting them, who take criminality and racketeering for granted.

I've had judges who appear to be rational men tell me, "But this is the way we do it. This is how we have always done it....." because during the entire course of their long careers, they've been doing it wrong.

Back in the 1980's we had a real eye-opener related to this in Oklahoma. The FBI did a sting operation and as a result, stumbled onto widespread corruption at both the county and state levels throughout Oklahoma.

They started walking into County Clerk Offices all over Oklahoma and asking the Clerk for "The Kickback Book" and the Clerks all dutifully went and got the book where they recorded all the kickbacks being paid to officials and contractors. They didn't know any better. That's the way things were done.

Oklahoma got cleaned up, but Arkansas was still just as bad and the Oklahoma crooks just moved on to Arkansas and set up shop.

And now all of it is blowing "sky high", with Arkansas politicians and judges and agency heads being indicted, and their ties to both the Clinton and Bush Presidencies coming to light.

Whereas most of the corruption in Oklahoma was of the petty ante kind, the present day crimes in Arkansas are much more sophisticated, more serious, and are international in nature.

They have tie-ins with international crime syndicates in the pharmaceutical, communications and entertainment industries, with international mining conglomerates, with human trafficking organizations including forced prostitution and pedophilia.

In a word, this isn't Joe and Amos filching a few cans of motor oil out of the shop shed.

This is Big Time crime being exposed in Arkansas and as Arkansas goes down for its part in the blossoming of international crime in America, Nevada is close behind. And then, New Mexico. And then California. And then New York. And then Illinois. And then.....

It will surprise nobody who has been awake the past fifty years that both the Bush and the Clinton Administrations and the CIA and the old DOD and the "Alphabet Soup" Agencies in general, are up to their necks in this. And because half our military and intelligence forces were involved, all this crime was "protected" in the "National Security Interest".

I would love to ask these men and women --- "Which nation's security were you protecting?"

It surely wasn't ours.

When you start pulling on one thread of a spider's web, you quickly find that its all connected, and so as this criminal Empire and the criminals running it are exposed, you may be sure that the thread of this corruption will lead all over the world.

Just as "THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA" was incorporated as a Scottish LLC and "The Republic of the United States of America" was incorporated in France, many other "governmental services corporations" like "AUSTRALIA" and "CANADA" have been incorporated in the United States via abuse of our Patent and Trademark and Copyright Offices.

This in turn created a sort of "double-blind" system in which we were responsible for their governments and they were responsible for ours, to keep all the crooks honest with each other.

We see the same principles at work with the Comprehensive Annual Financial Reports (CAFRs) -- the parent corporations had to compile this information for their own use to ride herd on their franchises and keep the franchises from siphoning off too much, so, ironically, all that information is now available to us.

All of this outrageous fraud against the sovereign governments, both national and state, appears to have been conceived and directed by an interlocking trust directorate engineered by the Holy See and the Universal Postal Union and the old Vichy French (Nazi) UN Corporation, seeking to create a worldwide control center governed by the B.E.A.S.T -- the Belgian Electronic Asset System.

Just imagine MERS only a couple hundred times larger, and just as quick, as feral, and as bogus.

Sitting here this morning with my coffee cup in hand surveying the view, I have to shake my head. If they had tried to do nothing at all but completely mess things up, we'd be looking at the same result: nobody knows the value of anything anymore, nobody knows who owns what anymore.

I've been getting comments about our situation in America from people all over the world. Some of them think that we are unique and that this is our problem and not theirs, but in fact, this same rot has infected virtually every country.

The same process of rooting out corporate crime syndicates like the Carlyle Group, Inc. and re-establishing control over all the other corporations ---including governmental services corporations --- has to take place.
