So what happened?

During the so-called Civil War one of our Federal Government service providers, the British-backed Territorial United States attacked a break-away group of the original States of America calling themselves The Confederate States of America. It was a cat-fight among federal service providers, and would-be service providers, not a “war” at all. No sovereign entity was involved, no Declaration of War was ever issued by the land jurisdiction Congress, no Treaty of Peace ever concluded.

After this illegal mercenary conflict on our shores was over, the British Territorial United States usurped upon the original States of America and seized upon them as “trust property” to be managed by the British Territorial United States “in trust” while the National level government they were supposed to provide us was “held in abeyance”.

The original States of America were all rolled over into trusts. The original State of Florida became the Florida State (Trust), and so on.

New Territorial States of America deceptively called by the same names replaced the original States of America, so that on the surface, nothing appeared to have changed: the (National)

State of Florida was replaced by the (Territorial) State of Florida and nobody knew the difference.

As a result of this fraud and deceit, the intended structure and balance of power – including the checks and balances built into the federal government – was undermined and commandeered by the British-controlled Territorial United States.

From there, it has been a long history of breach of trust and commercial mismanagement and false claims made against the actual states and people.

If you compare the simple, straight-forward, strictly compartmentalized original structure of the “federal government” with what has developed over time, you see the gross proliferation and incorporation and privatization of the Territorial and Municipal levels of the “essential government service” providers, most especially the development of municipal STATES OF STATES, which were appointed to do the dirty work for the insolvent Territorial States of States in 1951.

And right now the principal parent corporations in charge of all this fraud, the UNITED STATES, INC. and the USA, Inc. are both bankrupt, one in liquidation (UNITED STATES) and one in reorganization (USA, Inc.) and we, The United States of America (Unincorporated) are in court fighting the widespread supposition that we no longer exist and that our assets are “abandoned” and are available to pay the debts of these disloyal foreign federal service providers to their secondary creditors.
