

Advice About Home Invaders From a Police Commissioner

By Anna Von Reitz

- (1) Don't mess around with home invaders. Anyone motivated to invade your home without hailing you and making their identity and intentions clear is up to no good.
- (2) Don't err on the side of mercy, because chances are, if it is a home invader, you will get none.
- (3) Feel free to use deadly force if such invaders are inside your house, attempting to get into your house, and are threatening you. If you see a gun or knife in their hand, fire and ask questions later. Shoot to kill. Don't try to strategically wound home invaders.
- (4) If you catch an invader entering your house through a door or window, wait to fire until they are actually inside the house. Give them a verbal warning if you can do so without unduly endangering yourself or your family.
- (5) Nobody wants to fire on anyone, ever, and you should not be overly paranoid or nervous, but home invasion is a reality and it is necessary to keep doors and windows secure and homes properly guarded. Your safety and that of your family comes first.
