

No Thanks. It's Not Lack of Money. It's Lack of Value.

By Anna Von Reitz

Money, even actual money like gold and silver, is being used as a symbolic representation of value.

You can increase the amount of money so long as you have supplies of gold, silver, etc., or you can increase the amount of credit or securities, but increasing the availability of these symbols of value doesn't increase the value of what they represent.

All it does, when you increase the availability of money or securities without increasing the value of what these symbols represent, is create inflation and devaluation of currencies worldwide.

Here's an example of it.

You have a blueberry pie and it can be valued at fifty cents, ten dollars or a hundred dollars --- depending on the buying power and value that the dollar represents.

But it is still just one blueberry pie.

If there is no lack of "money" and everyone suddenly has and starts spending these "Prosperity Packages" the money supply expands, but the actual value of the goods and services represented by that money remains the same.

It's still just a blueberry pie.

So what happens, predictably, is hyperinflation.

Suddenly, an hour of labor costs $60, costs $600, costs $6000.... and soon the money is absolutely worthless.

Just as it was in the Weimar Republic a hundred years ago, people will be paying $100,000 for a loaf of bread.

And it will still just be a loaf of bread.

I remember when I could buy a loaf of bread for $0.25. Now, a comparable loaf of bread costs $3.69. According to that, a "dollar" is worth 1/15th of what it was worth in 1960.

If these "Prosperity Packages" are released ---purportedly as payment for all the damage these pukes have caused-- the value of the "dollar" will hyperinflate and it will be worthless almost overnight.

So what good is it and what actual value have you received?

Nada.

And it doesn't really matter if it is value symbolized by dollars or yen, by gold or paper. You are dealing with symbols of value, not value itself --- and value itself is what has been stolen from us: Our time. Our labor. Our land. Our natural resources. Our commodities. Our finished industrial products.

Meantime, the rats responsible will claim that they paid off their debts by making all this money available, which is both true in one sense and false in another---- because the money is just an accepted "symbol of value" and what really matters is the "value" of what that money represents.

When you just dump lots of money into the marketplace (which is what these Prosperity Packages do), you are dealing with "symbols of value" and the more casino chips there are, the less value each casino chip stands for--- because the actual value of what you are trading (like the blueberry pie) has not changed.

So, White Hats, if you've been promoting these Prosperity Packages as an answer to anything, you need to become considerably more sophisticated in your thinking and in generating a solution to this problem.

Otherwise, the American People and everyone else worldwide stand to be grossly damaged by the release of these so-called Prosperity Packages.

Their currencies will suffer hyperinflation, trade will be chaotic and strained in the extreme, public confidence in the monetary system will be nil and the rats will still owe all the value that they are trying to pass off as being "paid" with more Bushwah.

The guilty government corporations and banks responsible for the Mess will be just as guilty as they ever have been. In fact, they will have another attempted bamboozle to their discredit. And the take-home point to all concerned is that they will still owe everything they have always owed.

So--- why even go through such chaos and misery and waste? So the perpetrators can claim (dishonestly and unsuccessfully) that they have paid their debts?

We are not accepting this "Trillionaires for a Day Answer" as a solution to anything, least of all as payment for the debts and assets we are owed. And as for pretending that gold has so very much more value than paper as a symbol of value, you'd all better remember that the streets of Heaven are paved in gold for a reason.

See this article and over 900 others on Anna's website here: www.annavonreitz.com

To support this work look for the PayPal button on this website.