

The Last Jar

By Anna Von Reitz

We finished the last jar of cherry jam this morning.

I view the empty space on the pantry shelf.

There are some things you can't buy at a store.

Only time will bring the cherry trees to blossom, the bees to swarm

All the intricate miracles will have to be reborn —another generation.

Late in July the cherry season will come again with brown paper bags of fruit and we will eat our fill

And jealously preserve the rest.... but....

Many wings must fly and many breezes blow between now and then

That moment when the new cherry jam is back on the shelf, and everyone quietly thinks

No, you can't buy that at Costco.

See this article and over 3100 others on Anna's website here: www.annavonreitz.com

To support this work look for the PayPal buttons on this website.