

New Year — New Life and Uncharted Waters

By Anna Von Reitz

Tonight, New Year's Eve, 10:16 PM Alaska Standard Time, before noon in Rome on New Year's Day, The Great Palatine Seal cracked and dissolved.

It was totally abrupt, conclusive, over in the time it takes for collapse in free fall, and that was that. No warning, no fanfare, but all of a sudden, it was gone. Something exceedingly important and unexpected has happened within the power structures that have controlled humanity for centuries.

The natural energy corridors of the Earth are open and running free as rivers flowing to Africa and beyond, as it was always meant to be.

It felt almost painful, the sudden shock and shiver as the Great Seal gave way. I am here alone trying to take it all in, and trying to fathom why this is happening now.

What I can tell you for sure is that The Great Palatine Seal is gone as if never was—and this heralds a great change for all of us on Earth, not just a New Year, a whole new world.

As this profound realization was breaking I thought of the song, "Silent Lucidity" by Queensryche — we are waking up into the dream, and no matter what happens, I will be watching over you.

Don't be afraid going forward into this new world, this unleashed energy matrix which has been contorted and distorted for so long, is being restored. The Mirror will reflect your highest aspirations without corruption, so dream and live in this New Year like you have never been able to live or dream before.

Welcome to the dream. You are about to enter new realms, where the distorted time lines are mended, where music is played in whole tones, and where wonders of justice and compassion abide.

May the True God, Ancient of Days, the Lord of Life, Lord of infinite light and space—bless and keep us all.

May the blessings unfettered tonight pour into every heart and home, providing peace and abundance and delight.
