

There Are No "Fake Judges" and No "Sovereign Citizens" Either

By Anna Von Reitz

I have written several articles that explain the simple FACT that we are supposed to have TWO functioning court systems operating in the behalf of the people, one an admiralty court operating on the jurisdiction of the sea; one, a common law court operating on the jurisdiction of the land. Duh, folks, how hard is this to grasp? It's very plainly stated in the Constitution. Amendment VII. Read it.

So where are your Common Law Courts, given the further fact that all you ever see in the courthouses scattered across America are admiralty or administrative courts? They've vanished, even though they are absolutely mandated.

So where are they?

Answer: you haven't provided them for yourselves.

You have to provide your own government. You are supposed to be self-governing. Remember? That means you have to elect and staff and support your Common Law Courts, because there is NO mandate in the Constitution for the "federal government" to provide these courts for you.

The Constitution is only concerned with setting up and running the federal government. And the federal government is only concerned with international and interstate affairs.

So, you won't find a lot of reference to the Common Law Court System in The Constitution, because it was taken for granted and was not the subject of The Constitution as a whole. Nonetheless, our American Common Law Court System was and deserves to be the dominant court system in America.

It's what you are owed and what you owe yourselves, along with your birthright standing as American State Nationals.

There are misguided and also self-interested souls wandering around saying that I am a "fake" judge. All those individuals are either (1) ignorant or (2) self-interested because they make money off the admiralty court system and are afraid of losing their gravy train, or (3) both.

As with everything else, you have to learn. You have to read. I can point things out to you, but it is up to you to think and to look around the corners.

Who has a vested interest in trying to keep Americans from exercising their right of self-governance? Who profits from suppressing or attempting to discredit the lawful work and standing of the American Common Law Courts and judges?

I think it is apparent that a whole roster of people have grown rich off the admiralty and administrative court system. I think that those same people have enjoyed the power of control and oppression of others that "owning the court system" has given them.

If you want justice, you must give it to yourselves. You must demand it and you must begin by building your own local jural societies, electing your court officers, your sheriffs on the land; and all the other vacated offices must be filled. Otherwise, the "money mill" that the courts have become will only grow more corrupt.

It is an ugly but common fault of human nature to want to control others and to profit from them. This despotism and oppression is something you can prevent if you act now and act decisively and intelligently in support of your own Common Law Courts.

See my earlier post, <http://annavonreitz.com/commonvadmiraity.pdf> comparing and contrasting Common Law v. Admiralty in Our Courts v. THEIR Courts.

See this article and over 200 others on Anna's website here:www.annavonreitz.com
To support this work look for the PayPal button on this website.