

The Right Way, the Wrong Way, and No Way

By Anna Von Reitz

I have been asked to comment on all the various "Patriot Group Efforts" out there and that is a tall order, as they have been springing up like mushrooms. Part of this is due to people jerking awake and thinking, "OMG! We have to do something!" so they start "doing something".

Other efforts are cynical, even diabolical efforts to co-opt and derail any meaningful effort to fix the problems we face and suck up resources in the process.

Still other efforts are partially right and partially wrong as a result of having some information, but not enough.

This is typical. The Mess creates more mess. Just think of it in terms of your own housecleaning efforts. Things always look worse before they get better, more chaotic, not less.

First, there are two primary jobs, not one, to be undertaken. That adds a lot to the general confusion.

The first job is to organize the land jurisdiction States, which are the foundation of the international government --- the dog, not the tail. This requires the formation of Jural Assemblies composed of people who are retaining and lawfully asserting their original jurisdiction and original birthright identity and capacities as private American nationals and State Citizens. We are talking here about Wisconsin, Maine, Texas, Utah, Alaska..... those unincorporated and sovereign states formed by Declaration --- Statehood Compacts, Commonwealth Treatises, etc.

So far as I know, the only organization that is pursuing this fundamental task is the National Assembly being led by the Michigan General Jural Assembly. The only bone I have to pick with them, is that they need to be more adamant about membership and requiring that people properly declare their political status on the record before being allowed to participate. I am a stickler about that, because without it, these groups as a whole remain subject to infiltration and harassment and the legitimacy of their actions is left open to question.

The second job is to organize and "reconstruct" the Federal States of States that belong to the States of the Federation as business operations. This is the tail of the dog that is supposed to wag in our behalf, but which has been incapacitated for 150 years. This requires the formation of Jural Societies composed of people who are retaining and legally asserting Federal citizenship. We are talking here about corporate businesses belonging to the States and doing business as, for example: The State of Wisconsin, The State of Maine, The State of Texas, The State of Utah, The State of Alaska.

So far as I know, there are two principal groups working on this --- the Nation-States and RuSA, plus a relatively new organization that is pushing (ignorantly) for a Constitutional Convention.

Let me briefly comment that until people learn how their government is actually supposed to be structured, how jurisdictions work, and what the problems are, we don't need a Constitutional Convention and are not ready for one.

As for Nation-States and RuSA, both organizations are well-intended, but disjointed and need to get together and iron out differences, because in the process they will each learn important facts---like the fact that they are acting as would-be inheritors of the Confederation of States, not the Federation. Like the fact that there is actually no such thing as a "Nation-State" though we sometimes discuss things in those terms. Like the fact that Federal Citizens are not in the same political status as British Territorial United States Citizens and not in the same status as Municipal United States CITIZENS, either..... and they have to declare and record their own political status as Federal State Citizens.

So that is the status of the two major jobs confronting the people of this country that are absolutely necessary for us to restore our legitimate government to full function. And those are the principal organizations already engaged.

In addition there are numerous other groups out there doing various things, the National Liberty Alliance, T-ROH, and so on.

Just very briefly, NLA is in my opinion, hopelessly misguided. They are trying to set up Grand Juries without Courts, which makes as much sense as trying to build a horse with nothing but a mane and tail. Actual Grand Juries are supported by Jural Assemblies and Jural Societies. (See above.) So anyone who wants to build a viable Grand Jury needs to join either a Jural Assembly (land jurisdiction) or a Jural Society (sea jurisdiction) and get on with the job.

Same thing with T-ROH. Their leadership bought a copy of The Articles of Confederation at a Naval Auction and placed a "claim on abandonment" on the name of "The United States of America, Incorporated" --- a defunct Scottish Corporation that infringed upon our lawful name in 1868 to create their commercial corporation. This gives rise to a situation where honest men are making unjust claims based on prior piracy --- the Maxim of Law is: "Possession by pirates does not change ownership."

As a result, though the Navy auctioneer may have been selling the false "title" of a defunct Scottish commercial corporation calling itself "The United States of America, Incorporated" --- it has nothing to do with our lawful government beyond the fact that the scam artists infringed upon our copyrights in order to promote a mistaken identity fraud more than a century ago.

This is not a viable basis upon which to restore American Government, especially since our actual government --- The United States of America [Unincorporated] is still here, still operating, and not pleased with all the fraud against it by con artists trying to work similar names deceptions.

On top of these Home Grown organizations gone astray, we have deliberate foreign competitors. From France we have two versions of the same poison from the same basic perpetrators, "The Republic of the United States of America" and "The Republic for the United States of America". They started their operations with the first name and then apparently realized they'd made a mistake and added the second name to the roster.

Since then they have taken to simply calling their operation, "The Republic". This is not our missing Federal Republic that the Nation-States and RuSA are trying to restore. It's another "ringer" commercial corporation from Europe trying to sneak in the backdoor and take over our federal service contracts by a process of assumption.

Finally, the Government of Scotland, which was the first perpetrator in the Den of Liars, is fronting its candidates and trying to pull off the same scheme as the French "governmental services corporation" --- they have set up "THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, INC." and "THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, LLC".

Just Say No.
