

Still the Storm

By Anna Von Reitz

Each one of you, within your body systems, has 33 trillion volts of electricity at your command; this means that you have an equal amount of magnetic force. You, your body, is more than a "battery". Your body is also a magnetic force generator of mammoth proportions.

We don't feel this, because we are grounded within the Earth's magnetosphere, and largely remain unaware of our electrical and magnetic potential -- but it's there, just the same.

In the past we have used our combined energetic potential in baby steps to wash away "seals" in the Earth's magnetic grid -- basically, removing dams designed to block the free flow of energy in ancient times. We, by our joint action and intention, were able to lift these unnatural blockages and dissolve them.

Now, in the next fourteen hours, it's time to try another experiment and see what we can do to reverse the rotational force of Hurricane Milton.

It's a simple enough task. Visualize the storm as it currently is, spinning counterclockwise and acting like a rotating drill point to scoop up water and draw up into the air----and now, place your conscious mind above the storm, and turn it in the opposite, clockwise, direction.

Unwind it.

Pick up the ragged edge of the storm at its Southeastern corner and draw it upward with your 33 trillion volts of magnetic force. Stand facing east and west while you visualize and direct this, and apply your magnetic force to the north and south. As you catch the edges of the storm front, pull it upward, like pulling the end string of a ball of yarn.

As you do this, the storm loses its ability to gather more water and that reduces both the "weight" and rotational force of the storm.

Visualize the rotation of the storm slowing down, down, down and the energy dissipating harmlessly into the upper atmosphere.

We are not as strong and don't have the concentrated ability of Yehoshuah to still the storms of Earth with a single command, but we, too, have the innate, natural ability to say, "Be still!" and be obeyed.

So say it. Direct your attention to Hurricane Milton and visualize it helplessly unwinding like a ball of yarn spinning clockwise. Speak the command to it, "Be still!"

As you do, your 33 trillion volts is standing against it, like an angled wall, shunting the force of the storm into the upper atmosphere. This will cause rain in the Southern Hemisphere and Equatorial regions, but that is harmless.

We are providing the link below to help you visualize the storm, which will in turn help you to dispel and unravel it. Remember that it is turning counterclockwise, so the trick is to apply clockwise rotational force and pull upward.

It may seem very strange to you at first to discover this latent talent and ability, but if Yehoshuah could make the storm on Lake Galilee lay down, so can we, by working together, force Hurricane Milton to lay down at sea.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4X81ERdIFTE>

The physical effort to derail the cloud-seeding and direction of the storm has failed --- too little and too late, but our energetic capability is virtually infinite and instant, so take a time out and still the storm.

Save the people and animals and homes in Florida that are the intended victims of this man-made storm. Let your energy, focus, and will be their shield.

You can do it. We can do it.

Remember Yehoshua.

See this article and over 5000 others on Anna's website here: www.annavonreitz.com

To support this work look for the Donate button on this website.