

Yes, of Course, I Noticed.....

By Anna Von Reitz

I am not clueless or unaware of American History. Of course, I recognized the name "Gould". I even noticed all the transliterations: "Gold" and "Ghouled"---as in someone possessed. Sure.

But, I don't judge people by race, creed, ethnicity, age, sex....or, in this case, by family history.

I judge people one by one by one--- and just for themselves, according to what they say, and even more importantly, what they do.

Russell-J:Gould is an exceptional man and everything I said about him is true; but, unfortunately, Benedict Arnold was an exceptional man, too.

It isn't our family that dictates our ends. Our own decisions, our own weaknesses, our own strengths determine that. I would have happily worked with Russell and helped him to achieve much, if not all, that he told me he wanted to achieve.

I am very, very sad that all this has happened, and that he became involved in an attack on American soil and on innocent Alaskans, including me. But the evidence is the evidence ---and the evidence is compelling.
